LONDON, Feb. 3.—Following a strike which completely stopped traffic on five tubes of the London system this morning the London electricians held a meeting tonight and passed the following resolution:

"This mass meeting of London members of the electrical trades unions demands that the Government at once intervene in the labor disputes on the Clyde, at Belfast, and in London, &c., with a view to introducing legislation making operative a national forty-hour week, with the object of absorbing all the unemployment in the country. In the event of the Government deciding not to intervene, we, the London members of the electrical trades unions, will cease work Thursday next at 6 P. M."

It was also decided that a deputation should lay the resolution before the Government tomorrow and that another mass meeting should be held on Wednesday to receive its report on the Government's attitude.

The electrical trades control every power station in the London district, as well as many that are outside of the nominal London area. Their stoppage of work, with the resultant closing down of these centres, would automatically plunge the metropolis and the great outer suburbs in darkness, would stop all electrically driven and lighted workshops, and would prevent the running of any electrically driven vehicles.

The Tie-up of the Tubes.

Besides the stoppage of traffic in the tubes, that on the Brighton & South Coast Railway was tied up.

The tubes affected are the Baker Street and Waterloo, the Central London, the City and South London, the Brompton and Piccadilly, and the Hampstead and Highgate. Hundreds of thousands of persons travel to and from work by these systems daily.

The resolution in favor of the strike was also submitted to the workers on the District Underground Railway, which is London's biggest tube system, and was only defeated by a small majority. A similar proposal was considered by a joint meeting of the Great Western and London and Northwestern Electric trainmen, but they decided to support the executives of the trade unions concerned. However, in the event of being drafted into the districts affected by the tube strike, the men of the systems mentioned would call upon the governing boards of the unions to declare a national strike of all sections of railway labor.

The dispute is over an agreement recently signed by representatives of the Railway Executive Committee, the National Union of Railway men and the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers, under which the eight-hour working day was given to all sections of the men. The workers' representatives contend that it was made perfectly clear that all concessions previously made and in operation were to be continued, including "relief time," which many of the men had always received.

It is now stated that after some negotiations and discussion, the Railway Executive Committee has decided that relief time was not to be given under the eight-hour day, which would mean that a man must complete eight hours of work without an interval for refreshment or rest. The companies' position appears to be that it is not a matter for them to settle, and they throw the blame on the Railway Executive Committee.

As The Westminster Gazette puts it, "for the sake of half an hour for a meal here and ten minutes for a smoke there, thousands of other members of the community are being prevented from working at all and may soon have difficulty in getting any meals."

The tubes carry more than 400,000 passengers daily and the alternative means of transport have notoriously been crowded to the utmost for months past. So tonight there have been rushes at every point where buses could be boarded.

Women standing in queues waiting for trams have shivered in the damp cold for an hour or more before they could find even standing room, and the younger and more active have tramped it for miles home to distant suburbs.

The Government Holds Off.

The Government has issued a statement throwing all the blame on a small section of men and shows no sign of interfering in this policy. It has the support of most people, and even those who ask that something should be done have no definite proposal to put forward.

Moreover, it seems that at Glasgow and in the London dock strike this attitude of aloofness is beginning to produce satisfactory results. A certain number of men have been returning to work and there is some hope that the strike fever will wear itself out.

Diaz Praises Americans Who Fought in Italy

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—General Diaz, the Italian Commander in Chief, today received a number of the American newspaper men in Paris and talked at length with them on the spirit of fraternity existing between Italy and the United States. General Diaz said the American soldiers sent to Italy were a magnificent lot of men and that they fought with great ardor.

His only regret was that there were so few Americans with the Italian Army, not because of military reasons, but because he would have liked to have seen a large number of Americans returning home from Italy, who would prove "so many links in the chain of friendship and love between the two countries."

BAKER DEFENDS WORK OF COL. DEEDS

Extols the Man Whom Hughes Recommended for Court-Martial.

AT RICKENBACKER DINNER

"Ace of Aces" Guest of Honor of the Contest Board of the Automobile Association.

Colonel E. A. Deeds, whom Charles E. Hughes recommended be brought to court-martial on charges of acting as confidential adviser to a former business associate and who was subsequently exonerated by a board of inquiry, was warmly defended last night by Secretary of War Baker, speaking at a dinner tendered to Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, America's "ace of aces," at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Contest Board of the Automobile Association of America. Colonel Deeds heard the Secretary's praise of him.

Secretary Baker cited figures showing the number of airplanes America had when we entered the war, and gave figures showing the number at the time the armistice was signed. He praised Colonel Deeds highly and all those associated with him in the designing and manufacture of the Liberty motor.

"There is present here a man who, with a drawing board and a couple of pencils, locked himself in a room and came out with the Liberty motor," continued the Secretary. "There is at a table in this room Colonel Deeds, who walked around Washington with airplanes flying off the tips of his fingers. His imagination peopled the sky with airplanes.

"There are those who think that Colonel Deeds wanted to attain the unattainable, but I want to say that he went into the aircraft problems in such a way that he allowed nothing to stand in the way of the program that he set up. As a result, in the first year of the war the Liberty motor was designed, tested, improved, and placed in quantity manufacture and 1,100 motors were produced. In the next six months 18,000 were produced. I make bold he to say that I believe that nowhere in the history of industrial achievement is there a record equal to that.

Parliament for Motors.

"I know of what I speak, for I went to France and England and I talked to many ministers, and I want to say that those officials would have traded their guns or the Houses of Parliament for the Liberty motor. Our conversations, no matter on what subject, always ended when they asked me how many Liberty motors we could give them and how soon we could send them over.

"There was also a spruce shortage. These men built railroads to inaccessible parts of the Northwest in order to get spruce, and when the armistice was signed we had taken over allied orders for 20,000,000 feet of spruce and were actually turning out 25,000,000 feet monthly.

"We had never had machine guns synchronized to the propeller blades before. By the end of the war we had made 30,000 Lewis guns and 25,000 Marlin guns synchronized to shoot through the propeller blades. And any one who knows the mechanism of a machine gun knows what that means.

"In the breakdown of machines we found that only 4 per cent. were attributable to accident, 8 per cent. because of the weakness of the machines, and from 86 to 88 per cent. because of the breakdown in men. The medical side of the air service studied the problem, and concluded that the difficulty with the men concerned itself with the high altitude they flew at; therefore they designed an oxygen device that was beneficial, and at the end of the war we were producing them at the rate of 25,000 a month.

"From the beginning to the end of the war I think it is a fair statement to say that we had exceeded, in the ingenuity of our contribution, in the organization of our facilities, in the speed of our production and in the promises of the immediate future of the air service, the work of all the other nations allied with us together.

Got 491 German Planes.

"If some of my associates in the War Department dreamed impossible dreams, if they saw possibilities for production that only time can satisfy, I attribute as much success as they did have to their optimism and enthusiasm, for if they had been pessimists they could not have made their fine accomplishments.

"At the time we entered the war the air service had twelve fighting planes, two training planes and eleven being built on order, and the entire division of the Signal Corps was composed of 160 persons. The day the armistice

BERLIN, Feb. 2, (via Copenhagen.)—Even before the delegates to the National Convention have begun to arrive at Weimar that would-be second German capital has witnessed something very akin to a Spartacide performance.

About 100 chasseurs arrived there last night to prepare quarters for the rest of the Government troops selected for the protection of Weimar. They were received at the railway station by the local Soldiers' Council of the 94th Regiment, which demanded their immediate disarmament. This demand was complied with.

Some officers, who left the station before the Soldiers' Council arrived there, were encountered by the latter at 2 o'clock in the morning at the Café Sperling, and refused to disarm. As they were greatly outnumbered by the soldiers they gave up and were arrested.

Troops arriving later were not molested. The officers were also released afterward, and their arms were restored.

The local Soldiers' Council explained its action as due to its fear of being expelled from its own barracks, in which the chasseurs were to be quartered. The People's Commissioners have since given orders to find new quarters for the chasseurs.

The incident, of course, will serve to increase distrust in the present Government's foresight and ability to manage the critical situation. Even after a long series of woeful experiences with the Spartacide and Communist Soldiers' Councils, the Government again neglected the simplest measures to assure itself of the loyalty of the Weimar Soldiers' Council, merely taking it for granted.

The danger that the 94th Regiment garrisoned at Weimar might repeat its Spartacide performance is small, because it is now largely outnumbered by Government troops.. There is, however, alarming news from Eisenach, Erfurt, Halle, and Gotha, according to which a Spartacide attack on the National Convention is being prepared in all these towns.

At Eisenach the Soldiers' Council voted, 62 to 52 for "refusing protection to the National Convention." It also took possession of the telegraph office.

In Erfurt the Spartacides armed themselves with rifles and twenty rounds of ammunition each, from the stores of a small arms factory there, with the openly avowed intention of paying a visit to Weimar.

The Government has taken various precautions, demanding, for instance, that every visitor to Weimar must be provided with a passport stating the nature of his business. There is, however, one question which creates deep apprehension, namely: Are the soldiers who so readily consented to disarmament to be trusted with the protection of the National Convention?

Parley Restores Bremen Peace.

Bremen is at peace again, even if only temporarily, after two days of negotiations which were participated in by the Berlin Government, representatives of General Gerstenberg's division, the Bremen Government, the Bremen Majority Socialists, and the Hamburg and Oldenburg Soldiers' and Workers' Councils.

The People's Commissioners at Bremen consented to resign if the Berlin Government should desire them to do so. The armed workers at Bremen declared their readiness to deliver their arms to the 9th Army Corps, which guaranteed that the disarmament shall be complete and that order shall be restored in Bremen.

The Bremen Majority Socialists requested the immediate withdrawal of the division of General Gerstenberg, as its mission was finished. Gerstenberg consented not to occupy Bremen unless the other side should receive reinforcements from outside, as had been threatened.

That is the present situation, which looks very much like another compromise. Gerstenberg's division will re-

German Ex-Crown Prince Reported Suing for Divorce

ZURICH, Feb. 3.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, eldest son of the former German Emperor, has instituted proceedings for a divorce, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Munich Zeitung.

Former Crown Prince Frederick William is now an exile on the Dutch island of Weiringen, having fled to Holland soon after his father sought asylum there. His family, according to reports, has remained at Potsdam.

Frederick William was married in June, 1905, to the Grand Duchess Cecile of Mecklenburg, a sister of the Queen of Denmark. They have five children, the youngest, Princess Alexandria, having been born in 1915.

A Zurich dispatch on Sunday quoted the Tageblatt of Prague as authority for the statement that former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary intended to apply for a divorce. His wife was Princess Zita of Bourbon and Parma.

HALE FEARS LOSS OF SOVEREIGNTY

Suggests That Wilson's Plans Tend to a Dangerous Internationalism.

CHANGED OVER THERE

His Ideals as Voiced in Fine Phrases Not This People's Ideals, Maine Senator Insists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In the Senate today Senator Hale, Republican, of Maine, attacked the policy of President Wilson at the Paris conference. The President, he said, appeared to have drifted from the program which, he said, he outlined before going to Paris of having the war settled on a basis of exacting retribution from Germany, and bringing about a peace that would end militarism. Instead of pursuing that policy, the Maine Senator said, the President had assumed an attitude that would mean the surrender of the sovereignty of nations, which would be swallowed up in internationalism. This might mean in the end the heavy armament of nations to protect themselves from another war.

"The issue comes squarely down to the question whether the people of this country went into the war and carried it through for the purposes proclaimed by the President," said Senator Hale. "If the President is right, then let us make a peace that is in conformity with such humanitarian purposes, and in the future let us govern our actions toward the rest of the world in the spirit of sacrifice that these high and extremely unselfish purposes demand. We may have to surrender our sovereignty as a nation; we may have to maintain armies in all parts of the world; we may have to finance and set upon their feet and sustain the less fortunate nations of the world. What does it matter? It is all in the program, and if that is what we fought for we should be making but a poor showing as a nation if we balked at any of these things.

"I do not wish to decry the work of the President of the United States. I have already given him credit for sincerity in his motives, but I believe that his ideals are not the ideals of the vast majority of the people of the United States. The American people never understood the meaning and consequence of the ideals and policies of President Wilson. They were given out at a time when as Commander in Chief of the armies of the country it was held universally to be an unpardonable sin to criticise the President.

"But the theorists, the idealists, the people especially who never would have had us go into the war, are now in the front line trenches, loudly and vociferously contending for the millennium. But underneath all this the great still mass of the American people are awaiting their time. They are a patriotic people. They never would have consented to go to war had they not believed their country to be in danger.

"The American people will not stand for any plan that in any way affects or commits them to any policy of internationalizing their sovereignty as a nation. The American people are for America first, and they have no desire nor intention to wander very far from the faith and the teachings of their fathers."

Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire, compared the Paris conference with that of Vienna. The latter conference had not upset the sovereignty of nations, he said, and nothing was to be feared from the Paris conference. In part he said:

"Indeed, any one who follows diplomatic history and has noted the lofty declarations uttered during the latter period of the controversy with Napoleon will be struck with the similarity of language to be found in the declarations, say of Alexander I., who was the proponent then of a League of Nations, and some of the proponents of the League of Nations now.

"We find Alexander described by his closest companion, Czartoryski, who, as near as I can make out, was the Colonel House of that era, as one of the group which had brought over into the nineteenth century the illusions of the eighteenth, and who felt that in their own particular formula they possessed the remedy for all the ills from which mankind suffered, that their particular panacea was a touchstone to cure all the ills of humanity, and that—to use the striking phrase of Czartoryski—a few sacramental phrases were all that were necessary to solve any problem growing out of the relations of the people.

"So they went to the Council of Vienna in the same spirit of declaration which the Senator from Maine has described as obtaining today, and the sacramental phrases were even more resonant than any that have been uttered of late. Yet we find that when the conference was ended there was no confederation of Europe by which the sovereignty of any peoples had been surrendered.

"I do not think we need to bother ourselves about the outcome of the deliberations at Versailles. I have no doubt the conference now going on in the Hall of Mirrors will be no different in their great and ultimate results from those which took place a century ago."

WANT US AS A MANDATORY

Lansing Heads That on War Guilt—Greece Asks for Constantinople.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson presided at the opening meeting of the League of Nations Commission, which was held in Colonel House's apartments this afternoon and lasted from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Special interest attached to the meeting, owing to the feeling that the action of the council on the matter of the former German colonies required the early presentation of a definite plan on the constitution of the league.

The meeting afforded the members an opportunity to express individual views on the general principles which should govern the society. It is said that little divergence in views developed, except as to the measure of force to be employed, and it is believed that this fact made apparent the virtually unanimous agreement by the commission.

While the plan presented today was not disclosed, it is said to have been a combination of British, American, and French ideas. The draft does not, it is reported, go into such details as prohibiting the use of the submarine in warfare, discussing freedom of the seas, and like subjects, although it does touch on the limitation of armaments, naval as well as military.

The report of the committee will be the first presented to the plenary conference. As the committee includes representatives of all the great powers and many of the smaller ones, it is assumed that approval by the Peace Conference will be assured in advance.

Plan Printed in English.

There were present at the committee meeting today: For the United States—President Wilson, Colonel House, and Mr. Miller, technical expert; for Great Britain—Lord Robert Cecil and General Smuts; for France—Léon Bourgeois and Ferdinand Larnaude; for Italy—Premier Orlando; for Japan—Baron Chinda; also delegates from Belgium, Serbia, Brazil, Portugal, and China.

President Wilson greeted the members and took a leading part in the discussion. This was no longer general, but specific, as the meeting had before it the printed text of the agreed plan for the formation of the league. The text was in English, as had been decided upon at a recent meeting between President Wilson, Lord Robert Cecil, General Smuts, and Premier Orlando.

As some members of the commission do not speak English, it was determined to defer full discussion until the French text could be presented, when the debate will proceed article by article. This will probably be tomorrow night.

Although the agreed text seeks to bring together the views of all quarters, there are three other plans which will also be considered at the next meeting.

The following official communication was issued on today's meeting:

The commission met to compare views on procedure and to arrive at a method which will facilitate progress.

It was agreed that an accord in principle had been reached by the resolution, previously passed by the conference, and that the discussion should proceed accordingly at the next meeting, which is called for 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Hotel de Crillon.

Klotz Urges Speed.

Three other committees held their first formal meetings today.

Louis Klotz, French Minister of Finance, was elected President of the Committee on Reparation. In the briefest speech yet delivered during the conference, M. Klotz invited the members to get to work.

"Thank you," said M. Klotz. "Let us get to work for justice. That was our program."

Sign of Peace Conference Unity Seen in Lloyd George's Decision to Go to London

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Premier Lloyd George is arranging to go to London at the end of the week, to deal with domestic problems which press for attention. That the British Premier, whose conciliatory influence is recognized in all quarters, can leave the conference is a clear indication that the most urgent difficulties have been smoothed over, and that guiding principles have been established of which the various commissions which will continue the work of the conference can tackle the details.

Lloyd George has backed up the Wilsonian attitude with all his powers of persuasion and argument, and, while it would be unreasonable to credit all the stories of which this whispering gallery of Paris is full, there seems to be some ground for believing that but for the British Premier's intervention the deliberations of the congress would have on occasions experienced a serious check.

The internationalization of the German colonies was one stumbling-block which Lloyd George's intuition of essential things alone made it possible to overcome. From the purely British point of view the trouble over this question is by no means over. The Australians say that Premier Hughes is one of the personalities of the conference, and that he has been badly treated, particularly on the point that the British Government has declared that it accepted the Wilsonian principle of internationalization as far back as December last, whereas the Australian Government is understood to take the position that it was left in ignorance of any such decision, although vital Australian interests were involved.

In British Colonial Office quarters it is believed that Australian irritation will diminish as soon as it is realized that the substance is more important than the shadow.

FINANCE LOOMS UP AS VITAL PROBLEM

Allies Purpose to Make Germany Pay All She Can Without Collapsing.

TO CONSULT HER ON TIME

Some Think Berlin Will Tell the Powers to Take Possession and Run the Country.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—"The question of the League of Nations is so far advanced that I regard it as practically settled," said one of the best American authorities this morning.

Undoubtedly matters have moved rapidly in the last few hours. Galley proofs of the League plan have been passed around for final approval, and unless some unexpected differences arise the world will soon know the details of the scheme adopted for making war more difficult in the future.

All the conflicts between the allied powers are already in process of settlement under League principles. That between Italy and the Jugoslavs, which has been the most difficult and menacing, seems to be nearing solution by agreement.

The next great problem, that of finance, is now claiming the attention of the conference leaders. The first step will be to fix the amount which Germany shall pay, and the committee will soon make its report.

The plan to be followed is along the general line which has been advocated editorially in THE NEW YORK TIMES. The amount to be assessed against Germany will be the maximum of what she can pay without impairing the productive capacity necessary to paying the largest possible sum. Germany will probably not be consulted regarding the amount, but necessarily will have a voice regarding the time and terms.

Germany's debt before the war was $1,250,000,000. It is now about $42,000,000,000. Great Britain started the war with a debt of $3,250,000,000 and will finish with a debt of about $32,000,000,000. America's debt has risen from about $1,000,000,000 to $13,000,000,000. The figures in the case of Great Britain and America are net, after deducting loans to other countries, which are reckoned as live assets.

The French figures are unavailable, but the position of France is known to be less favorable. Her annual requirements have been increased by the war to the extent of $2,000,000,000 to $2,400,000,000.

In addition to recouping this increase from Germany and receiving reparation for the damage to the devastated districts, there is considerable French sentiment for recovering the $1,000,000,000 paid to Germany in 1871, together with compound interest. But it is recognized by the conference that the allotment of German contributions among the various claimants must come later, and the first task must be the fixing of the aggregate amount and terms of payment.

In view of the vast amount of damage and the impossibility of collecting

GERMANS TIRED OUT, EISNER DECLARES

Strikes Due to Physical Exhaustion and Underfeeding of Workingmen, He Says.

THINKS BOLSHEVISM BEATEN

Bavarian Premier Arrives in Berne to Attend Socialist and Labor Congress.

By JULIAN GRANDE.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Feb. 3.—Kurt Eisner, who has just arrived in Berne to attend the International Socialist and Labor Congress, willingly received your correspondent and gave him an interview for transmission to the United States.

Before becoming Bavarian Prime Minister, Eisner was imprisoned eight and a half months and treated as a common criminal. Owing to this and his war privations, he looks positively shrunken, not with age but with weakness, and seems to be greatly in need of a nourishing diet.

If he looks physically frail, however, his brain is extraordinarily alert and vigorous.

Eisner considers the union of German-speaking Austria and Germany probable. Concerning the monarchist party in Germany, he says it exists but is not important, and that there is no hope fo the restoration of the monarchy. Although Eisner is apparently uncertain as to the form which the future German Government will take, he inclines to think that it will be a federation on the United States model.

Many fears were entertained by Eisner's followers that, owing to the women's vote, reaction in Bavaria would triumph, but the elections showed that the women were much less reactionary than had been supposed.

Referring to the German workingmen's alleged disinclination to work, Eisner says that they are not capable of work because they are tired and underfed. He considers that incapacity rather than unreadiness to work is the trouble.

Bolshevism cannot hope to prevail in Germany, he believes, although the working people are absolutely determined to reorganize the whole of society on an entirely new basis.

Eisner insists that President Wilson is quite right in putting the League of Nations first and trying to settle the world's peace afterward. He assured me that until October, 1918, the great mass of the German people believed that Germany must win, and were quite surprised when they finally realized that she could not do so. The newspapers, he said, were mainly responsible for these false notions.

Referring to the future of the German colonies, he said that the German people took no interest in the question. They were too listless just now, all they want being bread and rest.

WILSON ON EASTERN PERIL

He Points to Menacing Conditions From Rhine to Pacific

WORLD'S HOPE IN LEAGUE

Sacrifices for Its Foundation, He Says, Are Nothing to Loss if It Fails.

CHEERED FOR FIVE MINUTES

Brilliant Audience Remains Standing Through His Speech, Despite His Protests.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson this evening delivered an address in the Chamber of Deputies, having as auditors President Poincaré, the Presidents of the Chamber and the Senate, and many members of both Houses of Parliament and the personnel of the French Cabinet.

Text of the President's Speech.

President Wilson spoke as follows:

"I am keenly aware of the unusual and distinguished honor you are paying me by permitting me to meet you in this place and to address you from this historic platform.

"Indeed, Sir, as day has followed day, and week has followed week, in this hospitable land of France, I have felt the sense of comradeship ever become more and more intimate, and it has seemed to me that the making of history was becoming singularly clear.

"We knew before this war began that France and America were united in affection. We knew the occasions which drew the two nations together in those years, which now seem so far away, when the world was first beginning to thrill with the impulse of human liberty, when the soldiers of France came to help the struggling little Republic of America to get on its feet and proclaim one of the first victories of freedom.

"We had never forgotten that, but we did not see the full meaning of it. A hundred years and more went by, and the spindles were slowly weaving the web of history. We did not see it to be complete, the whole of the design to be made plain.

"Now look what has happened. In that far-off day, when France came to the assistance of America, America was fighting Great Britain. And now she is linked as closely to Great Britain as she is to France. We see now how these apparently diverging lines of history are coming together. The nations which once stood in battle array against one another, are now shoulder to shoulder, fighting an common enemy.

"It was a long time before we saw that, and in the last four years something has happened that is unprecedented in the history of mankind. It is nothing less than this—that bodies of men on both sides of the sea and in all parts of the world have come to realize their comradeship in freedom.

France "at the Frontier of Freedom."

"France, in the meantime, as we have so often said, stood at the frontier of freedom. Her lines lay along the very lines that divided the home of freedom from the home of military despotism. Hers was the immediate peril. Hers was the constant dread. Hers was the most pressing necessity of preparation, and she had constantly to ask herself this question: 'If the blow falls, who will come to our assistance?'

"And the question was answered in the most unexpected way. Her allies came to her assistance, but many more than her allies. The free people of the world came to her assistance.

"And in this way America paid her debt of gratitude to France by sending her sons to fight upon the soil of France. She did more. She assisted in drawing the forces of the world together in order that France might never again feel her isolation, in order that France might never feel that hers was a lonely peril and would never again have to ask the question who would come to her assistance.

"For the alternative is a terrible alternative for France. I do not need to point out to you that east of you in Europe the future is full of question. Beyond the Rhine, across Germany, across Poland, across Russia, across Asia there are questions unanswered, and they may be for the present unanswerable.

"France still stands at the frontier. France still stands in the presence of those threatening and unanswered questions—threatening because unanswered—stands waiting for the solution of matters which touch her directly and intimately and constantly, and if she must stnd alone, what must she do? She must put upon her people a constant burden of taxation. She must undergo sacrifice that may become intolerable.

"And not only she, but the other nations of the world must do the like. They must be ready for any terrible incident of injustice. The thing is not inconceivable.

"I visited the other day a portion of the devastated region of France. I saw the noble City of Rheims in ruins, and I could not help saying to myself, 'here is where the blow fell because the rulers of the world did not sooner see how to prevent it.

"Forgetting the Relations of Peoples."

"The rulers of the world have been thinking of the relations of Governments and forgetting the relations of peoples. They have been thinking of the manoeuvres of international dealings, when what they ought to have been thinking of was the fortunes of men and women and the safety of home, and the care that they should take that their people should be happy because they were safe.

"They know that the only way to do this is to make it certain that the same thing will not always happen that has happened this time, that there never shall be any doubt or waiting or surmise, but that whenever France or any free people is threatened, the whole world will be ready to vindicate its liberty.

"It is for that reason, I take it, that I find such a warm and intelligent enthusiasm in France for the Society of Nations—France with her keen vision, France with her prophetic vision.

"It seems to be not only the need of France, but the need of mankind. And France sees the sacrifices which are necessary for the establishment of the Society of Nations are not to be compared with the constant dread of another catastrophe falling on the fair cities and areas of France.

"There was no more beautiful country. There was no more prosperous country. There was no more free-spirited people. All the world had admired France, and none of the world grudged France her greatness and her prosperity, except those who grudged her liberty and her prosperity. And it has profited us, terrible as the cost has been, to witness what has happened, to see with the physical eye what has happened because injustice was wrought.

"The President of the Chamber has pictured, as I cannot picture, the appalling sufferings, the terrible tragedy of France, but it is a tragedy which could not be repeated. As the pattern of history has disclosed itself it has disclosed the hearts of men drawing toward one another. Comradeships have become vivid. The purpose of association has become evident.

"The nations of the world are about to consummate a brotherhood which will make it unnecessary in the future to maintain those crushing armaments which make the peoples suffer almost as much in peace as they suffered in war.

"When the soldiers of America crossed the ocean they did not bring with them merely their arms. They brought with them a very vivid conception of France. They landed upon the soil of France with quickened pulses. They knew that they had come to do a thing which the heart of America had long wished to do. When General Pershing stood at the tomb of Lafayette and said: 'Lafayette, we are here!' it was as if he had said: 'Lafayette, here is the completion of the great story whose first chapter you assisted to write.'

Safety of France Assured.

"The world has seen the great plot worked out, and now the people of France may rest assured that their prosperity is secure, because their homes are secure, and men everywhere not only wish her safety and prosperity, but are ready to assure her that with all the force and wealth at their command they will guarantee her security and safety.

"So, as we sit from day to day at the Quai d'Orsay I think to myself, we might, if we could gain an audience of the free peoples of the world, adopt the language of General Pershing and say, 'Friends, men, humble women, little children, we are here; we are here as your friends, as your champions, as your representatives. We have come to work out for you a world which is fit to live in and in which all countries can enjoy the heritage of liberty for which France and America and England and Italy have paid so dear."

Speech of Paul Deschanel.

In greeting President Wilson, M. Deschanel said:

"The representatives of France are happy in offering you a respectful and affectionate welcome. Your visit evokes in our souls the memory of another memorable sojourn here—that of Benjamin Franklin on the eve of the French Revolution.

"What France acclaims in you is not only that you are the chief of a free democracy, a descendant of those admirable founders of the American Republic who brought across the ocean all the flower and fruit of experience in Anglo-Saxon politics, successor of Washington and Lincoln, but that you are a great citizen, who on that day when duty appeared to him followed the will of his nation and threw the entire force of the New World into the service of right. It is the high conscience which, imbued with the purest maxims of morality, is trying to make them penetrate into the Governments of men and into the relations of peoples between themselves.

"You wish that out of so much sorrow should come more justice. As this war was unlike any preceding war, so must this peace be unlike any preceding peace. Guarantees must be taken against the recurrence of the horrible things which have been an opprobrium to the world and which no one has stigmatized with more force than you; territorial, military, economic, and financial guarantees to protect the victims of German ambition against perpetual alarms, guarantees for free peoples, with efficacious sanctions to punish the crimes against the peace of the world first; then, to prevent them.

"In your eyes, as in ours, doubtless, the primordial condition of the foundation itself of this new world organization is a France definitely made proof against provocations and attacks. We, who during forty-four years have made the greatest sacrifices in order to maintain peace, know from the experience of centuries that the universe will never breathe freely so long as Germans can accumulate at our very doors the means of aggression.

"We will forget nothing, neither the bravery of your splendid youths, who shed their blood with ours, as one hundred and forty years ago, nor the victory of General Pershing at St. Mihiel, nor the inexhaustible and exquisite charity of your women, nor your noble figure. We find blended together all the principles of that great American civilization, made up of practical and enterprising genius, of wisdom, and idealism.

"Nothing will separate us. France loves your glorious country as a sister.

"Mr. President of the United States, we, with the President of France, request you to bring to America the loving kiss of France."

Poincare With Him.

The President was accompanied to the Palais Bourbon by President Poincaré, who called for him at the Murat mansion. Premier Clemenceau and M. Dubost, President of the Senate, were also in the party, which reached the Palais Bourbon exactly at 5 o'clock.

Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber, received the party on the steps of the building, standing bareheaded in the damp and chilly weather. The party then disappeared into the Chamber, M. Deschanel leading the way, with Mr. Wilson and M. Poincaré walking side by side and with M. Dubost and M. Clemenceau bringing up the rear.

Military honors were rendered by the Republican Guard, resplendent in new uniforms and full regalia. The Presidential party entered the Chamber amid a fanfare of bugles and the rolling of drums. Then the band of the Republican Guard played the American national anthem and "The Marseillaise," all those inside in the Chamber meanwhile rising and cheering.

The Chamber was decorated with French and American flags. The spacious room was packed to its capacity, while in the galleries some of the people held on to the rafters.

President Wilson, President Poincaré, and M. Clemenceau and M. Dubost had seats facing the Presidential chair, which was occupied by M. Deschanel, who opened the sitting.

Mrs. Wilson, Mme. Poincaré, and Mme. Deschanel had seats in the Presidential gallery, while the diplomatic section was filled with many distinguished personalities, including members of the Peace Conference, among them David Lloyd George, the British Premier; Arthur J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, and Secretary Lansing. All the Ministers were on the Government bench.

M. Deschanel opened the sitting by dellvering a short but eloquent speech of welcome, to which President Wilson replied in English, an interpreter translating his words into French.

All Stand as Wilson Speaks.

As President Wilson rose and walked toward the tribune with a quick step, the Deputies, Senators, and others arose and cheered and applauded for fully five minutes. The audience insisted on hearing the President's address standing, MM. Poincaré, Clemenceau, and Dubost rising with the rest. This seemed to embarrass President Wilson, who made gestures that the Deputies remain seated, but they shouted, "Standing! We will hear you standing!"

President Wilson turned to M. Deschanel, begging him to request that the Deputies be seated, but the President of the Chamber shrugged his shoulders, as if helpless, and President Wilson began in a low voice, which gained force as he proceeded.

There was a ripple of applause now and then as he was speaking, but the majority of the Deputies and Senators were unable to understand English clearly, and thus the enthusiasm did not break out until the interpreter translated the speech. Then the Deputies and Senators gave full vent to their feelings.

BERNE CONFERENCE OPENS.

Branting in Chair Praises Wilson—No Germans on Committees.

BERNE, Feb. 3.—Arthur Henderson, the English labor leader, opened the Socialist conference this afternoon with an address showing the difficulties which he, Samuel Gompers, Albert Thomas, French labor leader, and Emile Vandervelde, Belgian Socialist chief, had in arranging it. Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, was elected President.

Eighty delegates, representing twenty-one countries, were present, and it was stated that more were expected, including seventeen Americans.

Branting, in an address, remarked that if the conference at Paris "represented the ruling classes, he hoped Berne would represent the working classes." There was approval and some cheering when Branting said:

"President Wilson is the great protector of workingmen and the founder of the League of Nations."

A feature of the conference was the absence of a German representative among the leaders on the platform. No German was appointed on any committee named so far.

ASKS INQUIRY ON WAR.

Resolution by Representative Siegel Provides for Bipartisan Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Investigation by a special House Committee of the charges as to the conduct of the war made on the floor in the last ten days, respecting the demoting of National Guard officers, failure to make allotments and other matters, is sought by a resolution offered today by Representative Isaac Siegel of New York. The resolution provides that the Speaker shall appoint a committee of eight, four of each political party. Mr. Siegel said tonight he would ask the Rules Committee tomorrow to fix a day for a hearing on his resolution.

Mr. Siegel said he had been informed that 400 men reported each day at Camp Upton and were told to spend the day playing checkers as there was no military duty to be performed.

"If that is true," he added, "these men should be discharged. I hope that an investigation will be authorized and that it will be undertaken in a non-partisan way."

HOPES OF PROGRESS IN PARIS THIS WEEK

Possibility of Another Full Peace Conference Session on Wednesday.

BRITISH VIEW OF SEA POWER

Delegates Adhere to "Admiralty Policy" of Sufficient Force to Meet Any Attack.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—European and Asiatic territorial questions are the first point on the agenda of the Council of Ten for the earlier sessions of the week. Simultaneously with these conferences at the Quai d'Orsay, there will be extra conference discussions, chiefly at the Villa Murat and the Hotel de Crillon in the evenings, on the League of Nations, while members of the commission will at the same time be studying such questions as the responsibility for the war, reparations, financial problems, and the raising of the blockade.

It is hoped that sufficient progress will be made to enable the holding of another plenary session on Wednesday, on which day, unless expectations are disappointed, a new and important stage in the construction of the League of Nations will be found to have been reached. In that event the plenary conference will register a formula giving concrete form to the league.

House Has French Proposals.

Léon Bourgeois, head of the French section for the study of the league, has handed to Colonel House for President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and Orlando, a draft of proposals for the league, unanimously adopted by delegates from unofficial associations of the allied powers which have been studying the question during the last week. Some modifications may, of course, be introduced during the evening conferences at the Villa Murat, but in its main outlines this unofficial scheme, which has the support of American, British, French, Italian, and Belgian associations in favor of the league, is expected to provide the formula which the next plenary conference will adopt. President Wilson will introduce the resolution to the conference.

With the adoption of concrete proposals for the league, the conference will have reached a point where it can be said that guarantees are provided for the obligations which the peacemakers are contracting toward the world. The league will be the consecration of the peace terms. It will also imply the abdication of selfish national aspirations for the common weal.

There is some disparity between the American and British expectations as to the course of procedure during the week. While in American quarters it is thought that the "freedom of the seas" will come up for early discussion, the British understanding is that this is a question which cannot be debated in all its phases and as a whole until German, is summoned to Versailles.

British for "Admiralty Policy."

According to the British view, no decisions can be taken by the British Government until the future policy of Germany is clearly established, with definite assurances that it will not become a menace. The British attitude in regard to the whole question of the freedom of the seas was today defined as the "Admiralty policy." In other words, the political side of the subject takes secondary place by comparison with the Admiralty view that the interest of the far-flung British Empire must be adequately safeguarded by a navy sufficiently strong to meet any attack such as Germany made in 1914 upon the safety of the world. This attitude does not imply any lack of accord with the American program of naval construction. Agreement between America and Great Britain on that point, it is considered, can easily be reached. A working agreement would permit of limitations of armament, which Great Britain, on her side, is anxious to secure.

With Germany a member of the League of Nations, and abiding by its prescriptions, British apprehensions would receive alleviation, and the whole question known as the freedom of the seas would be susceptible of discussion without the reserves which Great Britain put upon her acceptance of President Wilson's fourteen points.

SURE SUBMARINES MUST GO.

English Correspondent Also Says Armaments Will Be Gradually Cut.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The abolition of submarines as warships may be decided upon by the League of Nations Committee during the coming week, according to the Paris correspondent of The Mail. It is said that this was one of several understandings which were reached during the conference Friday between President Wilson and Colonel House, General Smuts, and Lord Robert Cecil, and will probably be proposed among the first planks of the platform at the sessions this week.

British and American delegates, representing the biggest naval powers, are said to have sounded all naval opinion on this point. It was suggested by some that the submarine might be used defensively between the three-mile limit of territorial waters, but the overwhelming sentiment was that the undersea boat must be abolished outright.

"After scrapping the submarine," the correspondent says, "it is understood that recommendation will be made that the economic weapon take the place of all other weapons in future wars. Respecting disarmament, the League will endeavor to work out a scheme by which the armaments of all nations will be gradually curtailed to a point decided upon as being necessary for defense. The league will try to arrange this early enough to insure that the financial savings thus gained will pay the interest on the world's war debt."

PRINTED DRAFT PRESENTED

Another meeting of the committee was called for tomorrow to complete the organization. On Wednesday morning the committee will begin discussing the general principles of reparation.

Robert Lansing, American Secretary of State, was unanimously elected President of the Committee on Responsibility for the War. In proposing Mr. Lansing's name, Captain Andre Tardieu, the French member of the committee, said that before regulating a peace of justice it was necessary to impose penalties upon the authors of the aggressions which had brought death to millions.

The work of the committee, he explained, would be, first, to study the facts which would establish the guilt of those responsible for premeditated violation of treaties and international law, and, second, to fix the penalties which would be defined and applied.

This statment was issued:

The initial meeting of the commission on the responsibility for the war and its conduct was held today at 3 o'clock at the Ministry of the Interior, and was attended by the delegates of the powers represented on the commission.

Robert Lansing, Secretary of State and chief representative for the United States, was chosen President of the commission, and Sir Gordon Stewart of the British delegation and Senator Scialoia of the Italian delegation were chosen Vice Presidents. M. de la Pradelle was appointed secretary of the commission.

It was decided to appoint three subcommittees, two for the examination of questions of law and one for the examination of facts. The following persons were named as a committee of three to nominate members of the above mentioned sub-committees and to determine the mandate under which the sub-committees in question will act: W. F. Massey of the British delegation, M. Tardieu of the French delegation, and M. Politis, Greek delegates.

The Commission on Ports, Waterways, and Railways also held its first meeting today. The meeting was called to order by M. Clavelle, French Minister of Public Works. On his motion Signor Crispi, Italian Minister of Supplies, was named as Chairman and M. Sirton of Belgium Vice Chairman.

The Supreme Council transmitted a request for the admission of members of the smaller nationalities to this committee, which accordingly added a Czech, a Portuguese, and a Pole to membership.

The French and British presented a program including recognition of the general principle of the right of nations to control international waterways and international railways, which was accepted by the commission. The details of this will be considered at the next meeting.

The meeting of the principal commissions designated by the Peace Conference to prepare work for the conference is believed to promise a speedy conclusion of consideration of certain subjects.

The President's day was one of hard work. Every moment was assigned to some special task. First was the meeting of the Supreme Council, then one of the commission of the Society of Nations, and later a long reception in the Chamber of Deputies, at which the President spoke. So occupied was his time that the President had scarcely time for meals.

The much-discussed question whether the British dominions shall have separate representation as national units in a Society of Nations is understood to have been settled favorably as far as Great Britain is concerned.

Numerous conferences have been held between representatives of the dominions and the British Government, and it is said that a complete agreement has been reached that the self-governing dominions are entitled to places in the society as entities, having the same status as any other nation. The final decision rests with the Peace Conference, but the representatives of the dominions expect no objections there inasmuch as Great Britain is supporting them.

Pressing Us to Accept as Mandatory.

No answer has been returned by the American delegates to the Peace Conference to what is said to be an almost unanimous desire of the other powers that the United States undertake to act as mandatory for Armenia and other severed provinces of Turkey. Such of the American delegates as will discuss the situation say that they are disposed to resist this development of the plan for mandatories, holding that it is the business of Europe to look after the Europeans and the people of the Near East.

The argument used by the other powers in support of their desire that the United States assume some of the obligations to care for the welfare of backward peoples affected by the peace settlement and assist in their advancement to a higher state of civilization is based upon the unlimited confidence of other Governments and because it is known that the United States has no territorial aspirations.

Furthermore, it is argued that the confidence of the Armenians and the other peoples of the provinces affected, through the long-exerted influence of Robert College at Constantinople, is a strong reason for the participation of America as the mandatory power.

The American delegates feel that they should await the development of sentiment in America as to what duties may devolve upon the United States in connection with its interest in the welfare of dependent peoples.

It seems to be the view in American circles that the powers granted the mandatory nations will have a considerable influence in shaping the attitude of the American delegation on this question. If the mandatory is limited to the employment of native constabulary to enforce its mandates, there might be less objection to accepting such a responsibility than if it were contemplated that the mandatories use military forces of their own, this latter idea being obnoxious to the Americans.

In any event, before the American attitude can be determined, it is held to be necessary to await the completion of the project by the commission of the Peace Conference which is merging the various plans for the creation of the Society of Nations.

None of Our Troops to Turkey.

In connection with the work of the Military Commission of the War Council it was reiterated today in definite form that the use of American troops in garrisoning Turkey was not contemplated.

It was stated that examination of a statement prepared by General Tasker H. Bliss, military member of the commission, was thought to show clearly the unconstitutionality of such use of the armed forces of the United States without express sanction by Congress, in the absence of a declaration of war between the United States and Turkey.

The Military Commission, which is dealing with the question of the demobilization and reduction of the armed forces on the western front, is making rapid progress with its plans. Two sub-committees have been created to hasten the work.

The work of the Peace Conference has assumed such proportions that several delegations have found it necessary to send for assistance. The Japanese delegation has telegraphed to Minister Honda at Brussels, and Minister Adachi at Berne to come to Paris at once.

The Italian delegation has called for additional expert assistance to handle Socialist and labor problems, and in reply has been informed of the departure from Rome for Paris of Baron Mayor des Planches, head of the Bureau of Immigration, who was recently appointed a member of the Peace Conference Committee on International Labor Legislation.

GREECE PUTS IN CLAIM TO CONSTANTINOPLE

Venizelos Would be Willing, However, to Have City Made International Under League.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Premier Venizelos of Greece was before the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference at its session this morning and made a statement on the claims of Greece. He will continue his presentation at tomorrow morning's session.

The Greek claims, as presented by Venizelos, who was accompanied by Nicholas Politis, Greek Foreign Minister, embraced Northern Epirus, Thrace down the Dardanelles, including Constantinople, and the seafront along Western Asia Minor, with Smyrna as its commercial and geographical centre.

M. Venizelos maintained that the Greek race largely predominated in these regions. This was so manifest, particularly in Northern Epirus, that he intimated his willingness to leave the question to a plebiscite of the inhabitants of the various regions as the means of determining the racial predominance.

Concerning Constantinople, the Greek Premier maintained that if Ottoman sovereignty were suppressed, the natural solution would be to allot Constantinople and its vilayet to Greece, with international guarantees for the free navigation of the Dardanelles. If the Society of Nations became a reality, however, the Premier suggested that the international importance of Constantinople might make advisable the internationalization of the city under the protection of the society, which should select the Governor.

The official communiqué today reads:

The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the allied and associated powers, and the Japanese representatives met today at the Quai d'Orsay from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M. They heard M. Venizelos's statement of the claims of Greece, which will be continued tomorrow at 11 A. M., after which the Czechoslovak delegates will again be heard.

PAPER TRADE CONVENTIONS.

Manufacturers to Discuss the Development of Export Business.

The twenty-second annual convention of the American Paper and Pulp Association began yesterday in the Waldorf, and will continue until Feb. 6. President George W. Sison, Jr., said that the convention would consider national questions, such as the development of export trade, the supply of paper stock and materials, and the development of water power systems. Henry P. Carruth of the Mead Pulp and Paper Company, Dayton, Ohio, presided at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Technical Association of the pulp and paper industry.

The convention of the National Paper Trade Association opened yesterday in the Waldorf. The Executive Committees of the Fine Paper Division and of the Coarse Paper Division will meet today at 9:30 o'clock.

FINANCE LOOMS UP AS VITAL PROBLEM

enough to cover it fully, many plans have been discussed, including the distribution of the loss among the Allies in accordance with their population and resources. This suggestion has not been seriously considered by the American delegates, and is not likely to be pressed.

Everybody is in accord in the determination to make Germany pay to the uttermost. If, however, the amount fixed is beyond what she regards as her ability to pay, it is believed that she will "lie down." This action may take the form of inviting the Allies to occupy Germany with their armies and take full possession of all her industrial and economic resources, as well as the government of the country. It is not expected that under any circumstances would she offer military resistance. Her complete submission in the way suggested is regarded as the card that she is most likely to play.

In the light of President Wilson's procedure in the Peace Conference, Congress can rest assured that American interests and sentiment are being studiously considered in every move made. The President is taking care not to give just ground for criticism, and thus far the Senatorial attacks, it is felt, have been in the nature of putting up men of straw and knocking them down.

Fortunately, President Wilson has established himself so firmly in the peace councils that the Washington attacks have not cut the ground from under him here.

APPEAL BY FIUME OFFICIALS.

Mayor and Deputies Argue That "State" Should Be Italian.

PARIS, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson and other members of the Peace Conference have received from the President of the National Council at Fiume, the Mayor of the city, and members in the House of Deputies, a memorandum concerning the situation in that town, which expects its fate to be decided this week. The memorandum maintains that upon the dissolution of Austria Fiume became an independent State, exercising all State functions, as it had notified all Governments of Europe and America.

"The State of Fiume, using its rights of self-determination, decided to join Italy for national and economic reasons," the memorandum says. "The nationality of Fiume is proven by the fact that all Mayors and Deputies of the city have always been Italian, and the same holds true as to members of the Municipal Council. All schools in Fiume are Italian. The number of children attending Croatian schools at Susak, the neighboring Slav village, is hardly 1 per cent. of the total number of school children in Fiume.

"The Jugoslav commerce passing through Fiume is only 7 per cent. of the whole traffic of the port. Out of the total Jugoslav exportation and importation, 13 per cent. passes through Fiume, while 87 per cent. goes through Dalmatian ports, which Italy has proposed shall be assigned to the Jugoslavs."

GEORGIA REJECTS RUSSIAN PARLEY

Caucasian Republic Answers That the Country Is No Longer a Part of Russia.

NO TRUCE, SAYS KOLCHAK

Siberian Dictator Tells Army He Will Have Nothing to Do with Bolshevist Brigands.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Government of Georgia, in Transcaucasia, has responded to the invitation sent out by wireless from the Peace Conference to the Russian factions to attend the proposed Princes' Islands conference. The response is a declination to attend, on the ground that Georgia, like Finland, already has achieved her independence and is no longer a portion of Russia, so that she is not interested in the subject.

The Journal du Peuple says that the reply of M. Longuet, a French Socialist leader, to the Bolshevist Government concerning the conference on the Princes' Islands, which Foreign Minister Pichon said yesterday the French Government could not forward because its wireless was reserved for official use, has now been wirelessed to Moscow, "thanks to the American Government." The American delegates to the Peace Conference deny any knowledge of the matter.

OMSK, Jan. 30, (Associated Press.)—Public opinion in Omsk, where many thousands of refugees who fled before the wave of Bolshevism in European Central Russia are gathered, appears greatly exercised over the proposal of the allied powers for a conference of the various Russian factions, including the Bolsheviki.

The general idea among these refugees seems to be that Bolshevism must be crushed by arms and that no negotiations should be held with representatives of the Bolshevist régime.

In the absence of details, the Omsk Government has not yet replied to the proposal to attend the conference. Admiral Kolchak, the head of the Government, however, has issued a proclamation to the army in which he says there can be no thought of an armistice with the Bolsheviki "who crushed the nation, pillaged property, defiled sanctuaries and massacred the people."

"It is possible to reach an accord with the various provisional governments, but with brigands never," the proclamation concludes.

Admiral Kolchak took a solemn oath to work for the salvation of Russia and when it was pacified to turn it over to the people, who would be free to decide the form of government they desired. He said that in the meantime the government needed every assistance in the task of rehabilitation. Leaders of the army took a similar oath.

An impressive ceremony took place in the Ministry of Justice today when the Supreme Court founded by Peter the Great was reconstituted. The Court will be the highest tribunal and also will examine into the codification of laws affecting the land. The painting of former Emperor Nicholas II. was removed and that of Alexander II., the reformer and emancipator of the serfs, hung in its place in the Auditorium. Representatives of various groups of the population attended the ceremony.

For refusing to obey an order to protect the front of the Siberian army against the Bolsheviki in the region of Kungur, southeast of Perm, 250 soldiers and ten officers have been tried by court martial and shot for insubordination, according to a report received here from Kungur. Eight officers and fifty soldiers were taken to Ekaterinburg for trial.

The insubordination of the soldiers weakens the defense of Perm against the Bolsheviki, who continue to advance toward it from the southeast.

WANTS NO WOMEN SOLDIERS.

Northern Army Chief Orders Mme. Butchkareff to Discard Uniform.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 3. (Associated Press.)—Commander Maria Butchkareff, who led the famous Women's Battalion which was raised after the Russian revolution and took part in fighting in the Summer of 1917 on the eastern front, has returned to wearing civilian clothes by order of General Marushewski, Commander in Chief of the Russian forces in the region of the North. The General says he considers the performance of military duties by women as improper. The General's order, in part, reads:

"I do not take the responsibility of estimating the merits of Mme. Butchkareff's organization in the Russian Army, and I surmise that the efforts made and blood shed in the name of the Fatherland will be duly considered by the Central Government and by history. However, I consider it my duty to declare that within the borders of the Northern region, thank God, the time for quiet constructive work has come. I believe that the performance by women of military duties, which are improper for the sex, is a shameful mark stamped on the entire population of the region. I enjoin Mme. Butchkareff to take off her military uniform."

General Marushewski's order is the sequel to a call which Mme. Butchkareff made upon him last week, in officer's uniform with epaulettes, on her return from the Shenkursk district, where she had been working among the peasants. Her Adjutant, Lieutenant Filopoff, has been ordered to new duties.

Kiev, Capital of Ukraine, Also Occupied—Activity Reported in Turkastan.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 3.—A dispatch received from Libau says the Bolsheviki have captured the harbor and town of Windau, in Courland, on the Baltic Sea.

WARSAW, Jan. 31, (by Wireless via Vienna,) (Associated Press.)—Kiev has been taken by Bolshevist troops, General Petlura's troops partially going over to the enemy.

The Ukraine Government has been moved from Kiev to Winnitza, to the southwest. Railway communication with Kiev is cut off at Kovel, where there is a body of German troops attempting to keep order among disorderly Germans who are retiring from Ukraine.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 2, (via Montreal.)—Information has been received here of very disturbed conditions in Turkestan, where Bolshevist activity is prevalent and where some 40,000 German and Austrian former prisoners remain.

Fighting has occurred with Bolsheviki in the northern region, but details are lacking.

General Denekine's army in the region of Ekaterinodar, to which the British mission is attached, is making good progress, but in the other parts of southeastern Russia the situation remains unchanged, at least as regards the interior, where the Bolsheviki are supreme.

The Russian Black Sea ports are safe owing to the presence of allied warships, but communications between ports and the interior country are rendered difficult by the Bolsheviki.

SAYS BOLSHEVISM MUST BE OVERTHROWN

President Tschaikovsky of North Russia Scorns Mere Idea of Compromise.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Nicholas Tschaikovsky, President of the Northern Government of Russia, who passed through London on his way to Paris, said in the course of an interview to a representative of The Morning Post:

"The Allies must find some organic solution of the Russian problem and must not merely wave it away, as in fact has been done by the invitation to Princes' Islands.

"Remember that the germs of Bolshevism are today to be found in every country, and Bolshevism is not a manifestation of a political party, but a tendency that has degenerated into the tyranny of robbers and criminals. As for the masses who follow the Bolshevist leaders, they are largely mutineers, and to attempt to settle with such people by discussion is simply futile. Such an attempt would lower your prestige to the vanishing point and deprive you of all influence whatever in Russia.

"As to the suggestion that we other Russians should enter into negotiations for an accommodation with the Bolheviki, I would first point out that it is impracticable, because we have no common ground with the Bolsheviki. They deny every democratic principle that we affirm, fundamentally the liberty of the subject. There is only one settlement possible between us: either we prevail over them or they prevail over us.

"The policy of the conference is not only useless, is not only impracticable, but it is humiliating to the representatives of Russia. We cannot enter into discussions with criminals and outrage-mongers. To do so would be to recognize Bolshevism as a party or to recognize crime as a normal political weapon and to tolerate the loosening of the foundations of democracy. Their motives and principles would destroy all the accumulation of the ages, both material and spiritual, and to admit them to conference is to capitulate to anti-social forces altogether. It would be to take the first step on a disastrous road along which there is no stopping.

"At this time there is only one answer to the Bolsheviki, and it is: 'Hands off the State! Abdicate power and consent to the conditions which will allow free Russia to elect its own Constituent Assembly!'

"If the Bolsheviki refuse, then the League of Nations must organize an international force and impose their decrees. An end must be put to terrorism. Instead of this suggested conference with the Bolsheviki, it would be more straightforward and sincere of the Allies to say to the rest of Russia: 'We leave you to your fate.'

"If we are thus left to our fate to fight against Bolshevism, we shall do it to the last. Most of us will perish, but at least the future of Russia will be consolidated by our sacrifice. Something will be saved from the ruin. But under such humiliating conditions as are implied by the recognition of the conference with Bolshevism we cannot exist, and the State itself cannot exist. The sovereignty of the Russian State must be upheld at all costs."

DOWAGER CZARINA THINKS HER SONS LIVE

Refuses to Leave Russia Until Certain of Fate of Nicholas and Michael.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia has clung so firmly to her belief that her sons, the former Russian Emperor and Grand Duke Michael, are not dead, that many of her friends have been won over to that view and rumors in the European press concerning Nicholas Romanoff's alleged whereabouts are attracting much attention.

The aged Empress resolutely refuses to leave Russia until she learns positively of the fate of her son. She continues to live simply at Yalta, Crimea, declining invitations to visit the King and Queen of Rumania and even her sister, Queen Mother Alexandra of Great Britain.

Lieut. Col. J. W. Boyle, formerly of the Canadian Militia, who was commissioned by King Ferdinand of Rumania to visit Yalta with a ship to induce the Dowager Empress to seek safety in Rumania, recently arrived in Paris and told The Associated Press that the Dowager Empress's declination was most affecting. In spite of the gratitude she felt for King Ferdinand's interest, she said her duty to her family and to Russia prevented her leaving, as she and her daughters had decided to remain until the fate of Nicholas and Michael was cleared up.

Although the Dowager Empress's optimism has possibly been based on the fact that much unfavorable news has been concealed from her, Lieut. Col. Boyle says her hopefulness is convincing, and has spread to all her associates who do not believe the Bolshevist account of the murder of Nicholas at Ekaterinburg and the death of Michael at Perm.

Lieut. Col. Boyle says that a report of an investigation made by Czech officers on the murder of the former Emperor's family, which is the only reliable source of information, established that buttons and jewels belonging to the former Emperor's daughters were found in the ashes where the bodies of the entire Romanoff family were supposed to have been burned. This is not conclusive evidence, in Lieut. Col. Doyle's opinion.

Crimea is now comparatively quiet, and the Dowager Empress has an adequate guard of old officers to protect her against local Bolshevist demonstrations. Since the allied fleets entered the Black Sea there have been no disturbances at Yalta and food is plentiful there.

ENTENTE GAVE BANAT TO RUMANIA

Agreement Signed in August, 1916, When Ferdinand Entered War, Is Made Public.

RUSSIA PROMISED HELP

Rumania Was to Declare War Eight Days After a Saloniki Offensive Began.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The text of a treaty signed on Aug. 17, 1916, between Rumania and the Quadruple Entente is published today by the Temps. It embodies the conditions under which Rumania entered the war. Following are the articles:

Article 1. France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia guarantee the territorial integrity of the Kingdom of Rumania in the whole extent of its present frontiers.

Article 2. Rumania engages to declare war on and attack Austria-Hungary under the conditions stipulated in the accompanying military convention, and also engages on the declaration of war to cease economic relations and commercial exchanges with the enemies of all the Allies.

Article 3. France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia recognize Rumania's right to annex the territories in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy stipulated by Article 4.

Article 4 delimits the territories to be annexed by Rumania as follows:

The line will begin on the Pruth River at a point on the present frontier near Novoselitza; it will mount the Pruth to the frontier of Galicia at the confluence of the Pruth and the Czeremosz. It will then follow the frontier of Galicia-Bukowina and Galicia-Hungary to the Point Stog. It thence follows the line separating the waters of the Tisza and Vizo, reaching the Tisza at the village of Trebusa, above which it joins the Vizo.

Thence it descends the Thalweg Tisza to four kilometers below its junction with the Szamos River, leaving the village of Uasares Nameny to Rumania. It continues in a direction southsouthwest to a point six kilometers east of the town of Liebreczen. From this point it reaches the Crisch, a few kilometers below meeting its two affluents, the White Crisch and the Rapid Crisch. It then joins the Tisza at the village of Algye, north of Szegeeden, passing west of the villages of Croshaza and Befessamson, making a small curve.

From the Algy line it descends the Thalweg Tisza to its confluence with the Danube, and thence follows the Thalweg Danube to the present frontier of Rumania.

Rumania engages not to raise fortifications in front of Belgrade in a zone to be determined later, and only to keep a necessary force in this zone for police purposes. The Royal Rumanian Government engages to indemnify the Serbians of Banta, (of Temesius,) who in abandoning their properties, wish to emigrate within two years from the conclusion of peace.

Article 5.—Engages Rumania and the Quadruple Entente not to make a separate peace. The Quadruple Entente engage that the aforesaid territories in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy shall be annexed by the treaty of peace.

Article 6.—Rumania is to enjoy the same rights as the Allies in the peace preliminaries and the discussion of questions submitted to the Peace Congress.

Article 7.—The present treaty is to be kept secret until the conclusion of a general peace.

The military convention follows. The principal of the seventeen articles are:

Article 1. Rumania engages to attack Austria-Hungary on Aug. 28, 1916, (eight days after the Saloniki offensive.)

Article 2. The Russian Army will aid by vigorous action, notably in Bukonwia, and the Russian fleet will watch the Rumanian coasts, having the right of the use of the Port of Constanza (Kustendje.)

Article 3. Russia engages to send into Dobrudja two divisions of infantry and one division of cavalry to cooperate with the Rumanian Army against the Bulgarians, the Allies to make an offensive at Saloniki at least eight days before Rumania enters the war.

Article 4.—Rumania is to receive from the Allies, by way of Russia, munitions and war material.

Article 8.—The necessities of war comradeship in arms being safeguarded, no contracting party is subordinated to any other.

Article 9.—The principal object of Rumanian action will be in the direction of Budapest through Transylvania. The Russian troops, co-operating with the Rumanian army, will be under command of the chief of the Rumanian army.

NEW HOTEL FOR SOLDIERS.

Salvation Army to Operate the Victoria, Near Times Square.

As a temporary home for returning American soldiers the Salvation Army yesterday purchased the Victoria Hotel, at 155 West Forty-seventh Street.

The property, which consists of a nine-story building, with a frontage of 120 feet and a depth of 100, was sold by the Longacre Realty Company through William A. White & Sons. It was built in 1910, the land and buildings being assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $625,000. There are two mortgages on the property, and it is understood that the Salvation Army paid about $100,000 in cash, besides assuming the mortgages.

35 SOLDIERS HURT IN ATLANTIC STORM

NONE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Heavy Seas Hit Deckhouse and Flying Glass Cut Men Watching Hurricane.

The three transports which arrived yesterday from France with 3,129 troops experienced extremely heavy weather in the mid-Atlantic which delayed their arrival in port.

The officers of the American transport Agamemnon, which was formerly the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., said that the gale from the westward they encountered last Thursday developed into a hurricane with a velocity of 100 miles or more an hour. The seas, they said, were fully forty-five feet high and smashed over the hurricane deck, sweeping everything movable into the water.

Two of the lifeboats on the port side broke away from their lashings and crashed against the deckhouse smashing in the glass windows behind which the soldiers were watching the storm. One of the troops galleys was flooded, and a cook was carried out and swept along the alleyway with two batches of bread, a bag of onions, and two big pans of hash he was preparing for supper. "Pepper," the ship's pet cat, was washed overboard from the vegetable locker, and brought back by a cross sea which landed the dazed animal in the butcher's shop.

Everything was upset as the huge seas came over one after another for several minutes, and when there was a lull thirty-five soldiers were discovered bleeding from the cuts of the broken glass in the deck house. They were taken to the ship's hospitals on the main deck and treated. Five were cut so severely that they were in the hospital when the Agamemnon docked yesterday in Hoboken. Many of the soldiers were hurled about the decks during the big storm on Thursday, but were not injured.

The Agamemnon carried 2,914 troops, including 1,657 officers and men of the 51st Regiment of the Coast Artillery, regular army, and 38 officers and 311 men from Base Hospital 2, which was organized at Camp Meade, Md. There were also 627 sick and wounded aboard, and 43 naval officers and several casual officers.

One of the army officers on the transport was Captain Reed G. Landis, son of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago, who was attached to the 25th Aero Squadron and spent most of the time at the front attached to a British unit. He has a record of twelve German planes officially and claims six more. He wears the American D. S. C. and the British Distinguished Flying Cross. Another American aviator, Lieutenant G. A. Vaughan of Brooklyn, who has ten planes credited to him officially, also wore the British Flying Cross. Lieutenant D. Andrews of Denver was eight months with the 104th Aero Squadron and has two German machines to his credit.

Among the casuals on the Agamemnon were fifty wounded marines of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments, who were proud of having been in the fighting at Château-Thierry and Belleau Wood.

The 51st Regiment of Coast Artillery, which returned under the command of Colonel R. M. Mitchell, was in action at Seichprey, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne, and has only about 20 per cent. replacements, as the casualties were light.

Corporal Charles Pepper of Company D, 165th Regiment, wears the French War Cross, which he won by bayoneting fifteen Germans at Château-Thierry on Oct. 15. His home is at 1,055 Tiffany Street, the Bronx. Corporal Daniel J. Carroll of 275 Ninth Avenue, Company K, 165th Infantry, who also returned, was wounded in the ankle by a machine gun bullet at the Ourcq on July 28. He said that Major James McKenna was taken to the first aid station with him and laid down just beside him, but was beyond help.

Back Base Hospital Unit No. 2, with 40 officers and 308 men, which sailed from this city as No. 1 Presbyterian U. S. A. Hospital, returned under the command of Major W. B. Soper, with Captain Fenwick Beekman of 10 East Eighty-sixth Street as Adjutant. The unit has been stationed at Havre, and received wounded and sick British soldiers on their way to "Blighty." Dr. H. N. Vermilye of 1,229 Madison Avenue, who was with the unit, said that the hospital had accommodations for 800 patients and 60 nurses.

Another passenger on the Agememnon was Captain H. A. Hepburn, U. S. N., who has been in charge of the Third U. S. Submarine Division at Queenstown, Ireland. His division got five German submarines all told, and he said the Americans worked in perfect harmony with the British. "They are mighty fine fellows," the Captain added, "and if there is a story going around that tells of friction, I want to set it at rest forever."

The transport Samarinda arrived from St. Nazaire yesterday with 278 officers and men, and docked in South Brooklyn, where the passengers were debarked on a naval tug and landed at Hoboken. The troops included casuals of all branches of the army, including casual companies, 133 of Georgia and 446 New York.

The transport Absecon arrived from Nantes with 23 casuals.

The United States steamship Nansemond, 13,333 gross tonnage, which was formerly the Hamburg-American steamship Pennsylvania, has been taken over by the Navy Department, and will leave for Brest to bring back 5,000 troops. She has been painted the new transport colors adopted by naval officials, which consist of a black hull, white superstructure and deck houses, yellow masts and black funnels. During the war the Nansemond was used for carrying locomotives to France, and made one or two voyages with wounded.

EXTREMISTS TO JOIN IN WEIMAR RAID

main in front of Bremen until the final settlement.

The railway to the south, part of which had been destroyed by the Government troops, was restored last night, but service was again interrupted later because of some shooting affrays in the city, where the Majority Socialists and certain troops fought against the Spartacide elements.

Fears of Renewed Outbreak.

What may be expected if the Berlin Government consents to the disarmament of the Bremen workmen by the 9th Army Corps is indicated by a speech made by Pool, who acted as representative of the corps in the negotiations for peace. This speech, which Pool made to the armed Bremen workmen yesterday, is reported by the Vossische Zeitung today as follows:

"Unless Noske's answer to the demand that Gerstenberg's division be withdrawn is satisfactory, Pool told the workmen, he would mobilize the whole Ninth Army Corps for Bremen's defense. He had requested the garrison of Itzehoe to send artillery. Cuxhaven reinforcements had already arrived, but Lübeck refused to send any reinforcements except against the Spartacides.

"Pool said he was now going to negotiate with Gerstenberg. Were the workmen willing to be disarmed if Gerstenberg should insist? There was no clear answer. Pool now put the question as follows:

"'Will the armed workmen join the Ninth Army Corps in defense of Bremen if Gerstenberg does not desist from invasion?'

"The answer was affirmative and seemingly unanimous.

"After Pool, the former Governor of Bremen, Herr Eecks, addressed the workmen, advising them to make peace for the present, as it was not really intended to disarm them, but merely to make them part of the 75th Infantry Battalion, and that the arms should be kept for them at the barracks of that command and returned to the workmen when the time arrived to fight against the Government."

BERLIN, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—In the face of the clear intention of the extremists to oppose the meeting of the National Assembly, the Government is taking strong military measures, both in Berlin and Weimar.

Troops have been reinforced in the newspaper quarter of Berlin, and heavily manned armored cars stand day and night before the Reichstag Building, in readiness to proceed to any threatened point.

The extremists, by occupying the telegraph office at Eisenach, are able to paralyze a large part of the telegraphic traffic with Weimar.

HALTS WAR BETWEEN POLES AND CZECHS

Allied Commission Arranges Truce Pending Inquiry Into Coal Fields Dispute.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The allied commission which leaves for Poland next Saturday to adjust controversies between the Poles and Czechoslovaks over the Teschen coalfields has been able to arrange a truce between the two nationalities only pending the arrival of the commission and personal examination by it of the situation there.

Accordingly, the arrangement prescribes the sections where the Poles and Czechs are to exercise civil administration and military occupation, and regulates the operation and disposition of the output of the mines. As soon as possible after its arrival the commission will go to Teschen to examine the matter at issue. This, although almost unknown to the outside world, has been a very important and dangerous factor affecting relations between the newly created States.

Title to the Duchy of Teschen is involved in the controversy. This duchy was formerly a part of the crownlands of Austrian Silesia and has a population of less than 500,000. It is about the size of Rhode Island. It is valuable because the coal it produces is the only coal within the boundaries of either Poland or Czechoslovakia which will coke, and it is regarded as indispensable to the manufacturing interests of each State.

WARSAW, Jan. 31, by Wireless via Vienna, (Associated Press.)—The Czechoslovaks are bitterly denounced here because of recent events in the Duchy of Teschen. Lieutenant Reginald Foster of the American Army, representing the Peace Commission, is reported to have asked Dr. T. G. Masaryk, President of Czechoslovakia, if the Allies had given permission for the Czechs to attack the Poles. Dr. Masaryk is said to have replied in the negative, but is reported to have added that the territory was necessary for the development of Czechoslovakia. It is rumored that the Czechoslovaks planned to get control of Polish oil lands in Central Galicia, and it is alleged that they have already made a bargain with this object in view with the Ruthenians.

DEFENDS Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Stires of St. Thomas's Wonders Why Salvation Army Did Not Defend It.

The failure of the Salvation Army to go to the defense of the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the charge against it, was criticised last night by Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church. Dr. Stires, recently returned from Y. M. C. A. work, discussed the organization's overseas work at the Presbyterian Union in the Hotel Savoy.

"There are some people in the community," he said, "who feel that the Y. M. C. A. is the goat. When the great drive was on last Fall to raise the $100,000,000 funds I told my parishioners at St. Thomas's to put it all in one hat. My personal opinion, gained from my experiences and my observation of the way the money was spent overseas, was that I would give every cent to the Y. M. C. A. Don't let this be construed as a reflection upon any of the other agencies. It is intended only as an unqualified indorsement of the Y. M. C. A. I want to say that 90 per cent. of the criticism if traced down would disappear. Most of the other criticism would disappear when you considered the source of it."

Dr. Stires told of the many achievements of individual Y. M. C. A. workers and of the tremendous task the association had undertaken. He said he ran many of these rumors down and expressed surprise that the Salvation Army "when the Y. M. C. A. was being slandered did not come right out and say so."

MESSIMY JUSTIFIES BRIEY WITHDRAWAL

Ex-Minister Confirms Viviani's Statement of Sacrifice Made for Peace.

JOFFRE IS NONCOMMITTAL

Says He Discharged His Duties In All Circumstances, as His Report Will Show.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—General Adolphe Messimy, the French Minister of War in 1914, in an article in the Matin today concerning the declarations made in the Chamber of Deputies on Friday by ex-Premier Viviani, says that the Government on July 30, 1914, was obliged to solve the problem of protecting the frontiers while avoiding all possibility of aggression, so as to give proof of the love of France for peace and to throw the blame for hostilities on Germany. It was only for this reason, and not to obey the injunction of the Socialists, that the Government decided to establish a safety zone of ten kilometers in order to keep French patrols from entering German territory, and thus give Germany no excuse for aggression.

General Messimy says he took full responsibility for the order to withdraw. Marshal Joffre, he adds, was convinced of the diplomatic importance of the measure, and raised no objection to it. The results, he concludes, were as expected, and the German Government was forced to send out false reports to neutralize the effect on German opinion.

"That is all politics, and I am not a politician," Marshal Joffre said to newspaper men who sought his views on the Viviani statement. The Matin calls the discussion concerning the withdrawal, which affected the iron basin of Briey, the "Briey enigma."

Marshal Joffre said that he had discharged his duties fully in all circumstances, and that he was drawing up a plain historical statement of what had been done under his direction, which would contain the truth as established by documents.

General Lanrezac, who commanded the French Fifth Army at the outbreak of the war, told the Petit Journal that the evacuation of the Briey region had never been decided upon in advance, and that want of material means alone prevented the French Staff from making the basin untenable for the Germans.

General Nivelle, who at one time was in command at Verdun, the nearest point held by the French to Briey, informed the Matin that when he was at Verdun in 1916 the French were twenty-five miles from Briey, which was out of range of the French guns. A few airplane raids were made on Briey, but they had little important result. At that time, the General added, the Germans were working the metallurgical plants in that region.

8 KILLED IN TROOP TRAIN.

30 Homecoming U. S. Soldiers Also Hurt in Accident in France.

TROYES, France, Feb. 3.—Eight United States soldiers were killed and thirty injured when a troop train conveying American soldiers from Chaumont to Brest collided with two German locomotives standing in the station at Montieramey, near here.

The men were on their way to Brest to take ships for the United States. The dead and injured were taken to Bar-sur-Aube.

FOR A FEW GREAT RAIL CONCERNS

Hines Outlines Proposed Solution of Transportation Problem to Senate Committee.

OPPOSES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Favors Government Supervision of Intensive Private Control, with Guaranteed Returns.

URGES 5-YEAR EXTENSION

Deems Longer Period of Federal Administration Essential to Proper Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Opposition to Government ownership of railroads, and advocacy, instead, of Government supervision of private ownership limited to "comparatively few railroad companies," was voiced today by Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Mr. Hines, who already had said his views followed those of his predecessor, Mr. McAdoo, insisted that a five-year extension of the present Federal control of the railroads was necessary.

The new Director General appeared with a long statement, of which he read about one-third today. He will continue on the stand tomorrow. It is expected that the four railway brotherhoods will present their views on the future of the railroads after Mr. Hines has completed his testimony.

"From every standpoint," said Mr. Hines to the committee, "I believe it is in the public interest that there should be an extension of control to Jan. 1, 1924. This will insure public service in the meantime under the best conditions of public control, instead of under the worst conditions of private control.

"It will give opportunity for adoption of a permanent solution under conditions most favorable to perfectly fair consideration of every proposal, instead of forcing a solution in a period when the advocates of a greater social control are at a temporary disadvantage. It will make it practicable to have the results of normal operations under Government control, which, in my opinion, will not be practicable prior to March, 1921, when the results of the year 1920, as well as the results of the year 1919, will be available.

"It will relieve labor of the highly unfair inferences that are now drawn from the costs of railroad operation under Government control. It will give an opportunity to give a fair test to the proper co-ordination of railroads and inland waterways. It will not prejudice any legitimate interest in any way. Meantime, it will leave the President in a position where he can perform his primary executive function involved, that of rendering the transportation service, under favorable conditions, rather than under conditions of the most unfavorable and difficult character.

Capitalized at Real Value.

"It may be said that my observations necessarily lead to Government ownership and operation. I do not think so. I believe all the objects which I think must be achieved to obtain a permanent solution can be accomplished through the creation of a comparatively few railroad companies which will have capitalization equal only to the real value of the property, and which will have a moderate guaranteed return with the right to participate moderately in any additional profits.

"My prediction is that the more this subject is discussed the more apparent it will become that the advantages of the proposed plan of private management through the multiplicity of old railroad corporations is wholly illusory and ought not to be adopted, and that the subject must be dealt with in the radical and fundamental way which I have pointed out.

"I am forced to the conclusion either that there will be no comprehensive legislation in the next two years or that any legislation adopted will be as much like the present system as to offer no hope for a permanent solution. If, therefore, my opinion is asked as to the propriety of retaining the railroads under Federal control to facilitate a satisfactory, permanent solution, my reply is that from that standpoint we had better terminate the control and go back promptly to the old system or we should extend the control long enough to admit of an adequate opportunity to adopt a radical and new system which will really bring about a permanent solution.

"I do not personally believe in Government ownership. I believe there can be a form of radically reconstructed private ownership with such close Government supervision, including Government representation on the boards of directors, as will give the public and labor all the benefits of Government ownership and at the same time will preserve the benefits of private and self-interested initiative and will avoid the political difficulties which perhaps are inseparable from Government ownership.

"I do not believe the plans now before the committee which contemplate turning the railroads back to management by the numerous railroad corporations of the past will meet the fundamental difficulties, and I believe the more thoroughly the subject is explored the more this will be appreciated, and that it will develop by degrees that a far more radical treatment will be needed and that this treatment cannot be accorded in the crowded period of the next two years.

Speaks Only for Himself.

"On account of my responsibility as Director General, I believe it will be excusable in me to lay before you my personal views as to the permanent solution of the railroad problem. I must emphasize that I speak only for myself. I am not authorized to speak for the President, and, indeed, he has never expressed any view on the subject to me. He has shown in his address to Congress that he has reached no conclusions on the subject of a permanent solution. I do not conceive it to be my function to attempt to bring about one solution rather than another, but I feel that convictions which are the result of long years of contact with the subject may be of some value as emphasizing some of the leading requirements which I believe must be fairly faced and met before we can reach a solution which will be reasonably satisfactory to the American public.

"These conclusions on my part constitute a process of evolution. I started out believing that practically no public regulation was necessary. I came to appreciate the necessity and value of the strictest public regulation. For a long time I believed that the great number of railroad companies in this country, despite their differences in circumstances and ability, could work out their own salvation and render an adequate public service. I have been driven, however, by my contact with the subject to the conviction that this is not the case and that there must be a radical reconstruction of the whole scheme of private ownership and management if we are to avoid Government ownership."

Mr. Hines declared the methods adopted by the Railroad Administration for war purposes were entirely "open to reconstruction" for peace purposes.

"I wish to remove," he said, "if possible, any thought that my views on the duration of Federal control involve either directly or indirectly, nearly or remotely, the notion that Congress can or ought to be influenced to order an extension of Federal control for fear that unless the extension shall be granted the railroads will be relinquished without due regard to the public interest. I view the question absolutely from the standpoint of the public interest. I believe I will be able to show that unless a reasonable extension shall be granted it will be contrary to the public interest to hold the railroads for the full twenty-one months. But I concede fully and without qualification that the procedure is to be tested solely by the public interest, and it seems to me unthinkable that any suggestion of early relinquishment should be put forward as a leverage for forcing an extension."

Difficulties of Shorter Period.

"Grave difficulties" would interfere with operation during the twenty-one months' period, he said, among these being a slackening of support from officers and employes, and also an uncertainty among their forces. In addition, he said, there would, as is usual after wars, "come the normal reaction against an unusual form of governmental control," with consequent criticisms. Another "difficulty," Mr. Hines said, would be that every advocate of "any form of solution" would present it during the twenty-one months' period, and thus bring about a disturbing psychological situation.

"The country will be entering within the next twelve months," said Mr. Hines, "upon a Presidential campaign which will culminate at the election in November, 1920. Governmental operation of the railroads will be a target for a great deal of political discussion bearing upon the Presidential election. I do not see how it will be possible, despite the firm purpose of the Railroad Administration, to afford an absolutely non-partisan administration of the railroads, to avoid the Railroad Administration becoming the subject of a great deal of political discussion and criticism for the purely partisan purposes of the campaign. I do not complain of this condition. It is a part of the country's political methods which in the long run makes for the protection of the rights of the people. But nevertheless it is a condition which cannot be ignored, and it is a condition which promises to make for unsatisfactory railroad service under the present form of Government control rather than for satisfactory service."

Mr. Hines construed the Federal control act to mean that the existing rate structure should continue until "changed by orderly procedure," and that the Interstate Commerce Commission would protect the roads in this respect.

"It seems to me the railroad companies have unnecessarily taken counsel of their fears in this matter and have built up a state of alarm which is wholly without justification," said Mr. Hines.

Share of Profits for Labor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—Exaggerated complaints against Government railroad operation growing out of a natural reaction from wartime patriotic tension is a "psychological" factor which makes it difficult at this time to develop a permanent solution of the railroad problem, Director General Hines said today in testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. This is one important reason, Mr. Hines said, why Government operation either should be extended five years and time given for deliberate consideration, or the roads returned back to private management before the present twenty-one months' period expires.

"If any plan of private management is to be successful," he said, "it ought to provide for the participation of the Government and perhaps of labor in the profits in excess of some comparatively moderate return."

AUTO SHOW DRAWS ARMY AND NAVY MEN

Soldiers and Sailors Show Great Interest in the "General Pershing" Car.

RECORD MADE AT OPENING

15,000 Persons Entered Garden During First Hour—Dealers Will Be Guests Today.

Army and Navy Day at the automobile show attracted several hundred officers, soldiers, and sailors yesterday to Madison Square Garden and the 69th Regiment Armory. In view of the special military and naval features it was natural that particular interest should be centered in the so-called General Pershing car, the big dull gray serviceable-looking machine which is the chief feature in the Locomobile exhibit in the Garden. It is known as the Overseas model, and is an exact duplicate of the original service car shipped abroad for General Pershing several months ago. Sixteen cars of a similar type are now in use by General Pershing and his staff.

The main point of difference in this military car which distinguishes it from other touring and closed types are the double disk wheels on the rear, each fitted with heavy double tires. One reason for this is that owing to the hard usage of the military cars, if one of the dual tires is damaged, the other one can carry the load without stopping to fit a new one on. An extra double wheel is carried in the rear and two single wheels on the front mud guards. The wind shield is tilted back at an angle so as to allow for minimum wind pressure and high speed. One wealthy motorist was so impressed with the car's novel features that he gave an order for one yesterday, double rear wheels and everything.

Both buildings were well crowded in the afternoon and evening and C. H. Larson, Chairman of the Dealers' Show Committee, made the announcement that during the first hour of the Saturday night opening more than 15,000 persons entered the Garden, a new high record on the first night for a New York automobile show. Another sign that pleases the dealers and which indicates that the present year will witness an unusual demand for motor cars was the large volume of early buying.

Coupe for a Bride.

No show may be called perfect without a variety of bridal coupes, and there are several of this type that never fail to arouse the interest of women visitors. The Maxwell shows a wonderful creation finished in white with nickel-plated trimmings and the interior upholstered in dainty cretonne. The tendency to enlarge the coupe capacity is noticeable in some makes, the Dodge Brothers showing a new type equipped for three, the additional room being obtained by advancing the driver's seat a few inches.

The Oakland open-frame chassise, with its mirror attachment beneath the running six-cylinder motor, is always surrounded by a curious group, the mirror, it being explained, having a special interest for the women motorists. Among the fully equipped Oakland cars are a sporty yellow roadster, a sedan with wire wheels and a coupe finished in rich maroon.

Two of the genuinely palatial cars in the Garden are the Owen-Magnetics, one being a richly finished dark blue limousine-sedan and the other a seven-passenger light blue touring car. Added interest in the value of the electric transmission, which is the chief feature of this make, is given in a recent letter received by E. S. Partridge, President of the New York Owen-Magnetic Company, from his son, Corporal George S. Partridge, now in France, and who saw active service in the 330th Battalion Tank Corps.

One-Finger Emergency Brake.

One of the distinctive cars in the Armory is the Lexington five-passenger touring car, with its light blue body and cream-colored finish for the lower portion, giving a very stylish effect. The maroon-colored Sedan and other closed models are richly designed with mahogany interior fittings.

One of the most valuable features is what is called the "one-finger emergency" brake, constructed with an eight-inch drum, mounted upon the front universal joint directly behind the transmission case, and controlled by a hand lever at the driver's right. It does away with the double-brake rods and linkage necessary under the old method which applied the braking power to both rear wheels, and eliminates the uneven pull often caused by an improperly adjusted rod.

The high-hood straight-line type continues to be favored by the body builders, and due to the employment of a shorter wheelbase, the interior of the body has been more carefully designed than formerly. The super-elongated tonneau with the close front compartment is disappearing and a better balance is being struck between the driver's space and the passengers' compartment. Slanting windshields are growing in popularity. The advantage is a shortening of the top by several inches while giving better vision to the driver and it reduces the head-on wind resistance.

Today will be Dealers' Day and several hundred invitations have been extended to the visiting members of the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

IMMIGRATION BAN HEARING.

Rules Committee Will Today Consider Priority for Burnett Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Opponents of the plan to prohibit general immigration for four years, as provided in the Burnett bill, are scheduled to appear here tomorrow, when the Rules Committee will consider a request to fix a special day for the consideration of the bill by the House.

Representative J. L. Burnett of Alabama will urge that the committee fix such a day for some time next week, while Representatives Siegel and Sabath, who are against the bill, will appear in opposition to giving the bill a priority place, when the House has before it so much important legislation that should be enacted before March 4. Senator Penrose, who is also opposed to the measure, says there is little likelihood of the Senate considering the measure this session.

was signed there were 4,865 planes ready in this country, and 6,472 in France, a total of 11,337.

"The major part of those in France were of foreign manufacture," he continued, "but we were producing planes more rapidly than the ships could cross the seas and the problem was to get the planes to the front, a problem of ocean transportation and not of manufacture. Our 160 employes had grown to 18,688 officers and 187,760 men, and besides that we had grounds and training schools filled with cadets.

"France told us that if we sent 4,500 airplaes from America that would insure the Allies supremacy of the air. We did in the first year more than the French succeeded in doing under the pressure of war in three years. Nothing was more superb in American business history than that American business men accepted the invitation of France.

"During our participation in the war our men actually but unofficially brought down 491 German planes. According to the severe rules of the service, however, only 350 of these were counted. The Germans got 271 of our planes. So you see we pretty nearly got two for one. We brought down fifty-seven of their balloons and they got forty-five of ours."

Secretary Baker declared that if the armistice had not been signed the German armies would have been captured and seconded the words of Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, who had declared, prior to the address of the Secretary, that the victory of the Allies was a military victory and was not due to the internal condition of Germany.

Praises American Army.

General Menoher, who formerly commanded the Rainbow Division during the period of active warfare, was applauded warmly when he declared that it was only the surrender of Germany that saved its armies from capture, for he asserted that in the last drive there was absolutely no doubt but that the American troops would push on to the Rhine "and nothing on earth could stop us."

The Rev. Henry van Dyke, D. D., ex-United States Minister to Holland, paid a tribute to President Wilson, and then alluded to Captain Rickenbacker as the "Ace of Hearts" and presented to him a pair of wings made of platinum which were set with diamonds and sapphires, and were for the aviator's mother, he said.

After acknowledging the present, Captain Rickenbacker, who was received with enthusiastic cheering, told incidents of his experiences at the front. After fourteen victories over the German lines, he said, he had an ambition to bring down a boche flyer over the French lines.

"One night," the Captain continued, "I saw an enemy machine well over the lines and went up after him alone. I managed to wound the observer in the German machine and then manoeuvred to get at the rear, but I had to stop to clean my guns. While I was doing this Captain Arthur Chambers, who usually accompanied me, saw what had happened and flew up to assist me, so that it was fifty-fifty on the boche.

"Many times when I have felt disgusted with life in the aero squads I have gone out into the front-line trenches and sat with the chaps who lived in six to ten inches of water and suffered without a murmur more discomforts than the average American ever dreams of. I realized that I must be a slacker to complain at my lot. In my opinion every man who went through the trench life in France should have some decoration. The public should thank them and their families who let them go to serve their country."

The following message was read from General Pershing:

Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces.

The history of the American air service is as remarkable for its sound and successful development of aviation tactics as for its spirit of unselfish devotion and daredevil gallantry which is unsurpassed by anything the great war has produced. Captain Rickenbacker has written some of its brightest pages and on behalf of the American Expeditionary Forces I am proud to bear witness to our admiration for the air service and for him.

PERSHING.

William Howard Taft sent this message: "As a private citizen, I tender my sincere congratulations on the opportunity you have had greatly to serve your country, and in the glorious way in which you have improved that opportunity and earned the gratitude of all."

The mother of the guest of honor, Mrs. Elizabeth Rickenbacker, was accorded an ovation when she was discovered in one of the boxes with her daughter, Emma, and a friend, Mrs. W. A. Pfeiffer.

O'LEARY ARTICLES IN COURT

The trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary and others for violation of the espionage law was continued yesterday before Federal Judge A. N. Hand, and the day was spent in reading articles and editorials from Bull, O'Leary's magazine. In one issue O'Leary could not see any hope for the allied cause because of the wonderful military machine of the Germans and the German spirit. There was plenty of criticism of President Wilson and of the war program, at a time when the American Expeditionary Forces were already beginning to land in France.

One article criticised the Liberty Loan drives and stated that they had been forced by various methods which are not employed by freemen. Food conservation was attacked on the ground that it was to feed the Allies while Americans at home went hungry. Many editorials expressing the deepest dislike and distrust of England were read into the record. The trial will be continued this morning.

SWIFT MEMORANDA USED AGAINST HIM

Heney Has Packer's Mislaid Confidential Admissions Put in Senate Record.

"SHOWS US UP ROTTEN"

So "L. F. S." Wrote of Charge That Food Administration Man Was a Dummy of Swift & Co.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Memoranda found among the papers of Louis F. Swift, the Chicago packer, after his examination last Saturday before the Senate Agricultural Committee, were produced today by Francis J. Heney, before the committee, to show that Mr. Swift had expressed regret that evidence touching upon the alleged relations of W. F. Priebe, of the Food Administration, with the packers had become public. Mr. Priebe is a dollar-a-year man, and was accused by Mr. Heney of having been the head of a dummy poultry firm actually owned by Swift & Co.

Mr. Heney had alleged that Mr. Priebe used his position with the Food Administration, in which he was head of the poultry division, to aid the packers in disposing of storage fowls. The investigator charged that Mr. Priebe had stopped the sale of live fowls to bring this about.

Before the committee today, Mr. Heney produced a pamphlet embracing evidence before the Agricultural Committee which, he said, had inadvertently been put with his own papers when the committee adjourned on Saturday. The pamphlet belonged to Mr. Swift, he said, and inside of it Mr. Heney found a card bearing the name of L. A. Carton, Treasurer of Swift & Co. On the card were two memoranda, one evidently written by Mr. Carton and the other by Mr. Swift. One read:

"L. F. S.—It is embarrassing—the whole poultry business is. Whether it would be less so by changing the name to Swift & Co. is matter I have mentioned to you and the others and is without conclusion. L. A. C."

The other memorandum, written across that signed "L. A. C." read:

"Priebe matter shows us up rotten—I am ashamed it got this way and sorry we cannot change over to Swift & Co., or sell out. Think we must. L. F. S."

Senator Page disputed the propriety of the memoranda being put in the records, saying they were "strictly private and confidential."

"They came into Mr. Heney's hands through a mistake, and to put them into the record is entirely unjustifiable," insisted Mr. Page.

"The Federal Trade Commission has the power to go into the packers' files," said Mr. Heney. "This is legitimate evidence."

"I insist that they were private memoranda, and that we have no justification to use them," replied Mr. Page.

"Then if a burglar leaves his tools, you wouldn't be justified in using them to convict him?" suggested Mr. Heney.

"This doesn't meet my sense of propriety," replied Mr. Page. "I think it is a piece of dishonesty to use them and wouldn't think of doing such a thing."

"I assume full responsibility," retorted Mr. Heney.

Senator Gore, Chairman of the Committee, remarked that they touched upon a public matter solely and could hardly be regarded in a confidential light. The committee voted to allow them to become a part of the record.

L. D. Weld, counsel for Mr. Swift, after looking at the memoranda, said they "did not prove anything," and that he regarded them as "unimportant."

It was recalled that after Mr. Heney had alleged, some time ago, that Mr. Priebe was the head of a dummy concern that was in reality owned by Louis Swift & Co., Mr. Hoover and Mr. Swift had denied it. At that time Mr. Heney also charged that Mr. Priebe had warned banks not to extend large credits to independent poultry men, so that they might not be able to move poultry supplies to the disadvantage of the five big packing firms.

STRIKE TIES UP TUBES IN LONDON

Even at Belfast there are signs of returning sanity, and strikers' womenfolk are said to be getting indignant with the general anarchy.

It is also noticeable that newspapers of all shades of opinion are insisting more strongly every day that the disturbances are not the work of legitimate trade unionists, but of agitators of foreign birth or extraction and are asking why they should be permitted to stir up trouble in a country that has shown them hospitality. Thus W. A. Appleton, a noted trade union leader, in an article in The Evening Standard against Government intervention and the men's extreme demands, says:

"The men behind the present disturbances are the same men who formed the 'Friends of Germany' Party and who tried their hardest to prevent guns and munitions reaching Flanders at the time the soldier were enduring indescribable misery and daily facing death. While he was saving the Empire on a shilling a day some of these strikers were jeopardizing the Empire on £1 a day."

Cabinet Against Intervention.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The British Cabinet held a session today to discuss the labor situation. It is said, however, that the Government is still against any intervention.

The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress decided to summon a special meeting to consider the whole question of industrial unrest.

The Board of Trade issued a statement today on the tube strike, in which it said that when the eight-hour day was granted the union conferred with the Government and agreed that it meant an eight-hour working day. If time for meals were taken out, the statement added, it would mean that the tube men would work seven or seven and one-half hours, and on other railways as low as six and one-half hours in some cases.

The buses and the street cars were still running today, but for some time these means of conveyance have been unable to cope with the ordinary traffic because of the shortage of buses and cars and of men to operate them. The result was that thousands of people today had to make their way as they best could over the slippery sidewalks to their places of work.

The workmen of Glasgow who remain loyal to their unions, which have not sanctioned the strikes there, were returning gradually to work this morning, according to The Evening Standard, as a result of a promise by the authorities to give them complete protection. Many works which had been forced to close down in consequence of a lack of electric power were provided with sufficient current to resume operations.

At Belfast the second week of the strike begins, according to reports received here, with increased uneasiness, although there are no signs of any disposition on the part of the men to resort to further violence.

JONAS SUES HEARST PAPER FOR LIBEL

IS OUT AS CHAIRMAN

President Riegelmann Accepts His Resignation from Celebration Committee.

Those identified with the interests of W. R. Hearst won yesterday what they considered to be a victory in the row over the control of the policies of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee when Borough President Edward Riegelmann accepted the resignation of Nathan S. Jonas, a banker, as Chairman of the Executive Committee, and, appointed Congressman John J. Delaney in his place. Mr. Riegelmann took this action notwithstanding the fact that the committee, at a meeting on Friday, gave Mr. Jonas a vote of confidence. It is expected that many of the members will follow Mr. Jonas out of the committee. Mr. Jonas announced that he had begun a libel action against the publishers of The New York Evening Journal, based on an editorial article which appeared in that newspaper on Friday.

The article in question was entitled "Throw Those Irish Out." It dealt with alleged happenings at the mass meeting held under the auspices of the committee at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Wednesday evening last when Commissioner of Records Edmund O'Connor, a Hearst political leader in Brooklyn, and John E. Sullivan were ejected from the auditorium. The controversy which has upset the committee started over the appearance of James M. Beck as the chief speaker at the academy meeting. O'Connor and Sullivan were present to protest against Mr. Beck speaking. When they attempted to assert themselves they were told to keep quiet, and were finally escorted to the lobby of the house.

"The article headed, 'Throw Those Irish Out,' which appeared in last Friday's Evening Journal," said Mr. Jonas yesterday, "was so entirely false and so absolutely malicious in its diatribe against me, that I have already commenced a suit for libel. I seek no personal gain from this suit, but I want this man to know that he cannot with impunity spread lies broadcast about me and about the most public spirited and most honored men in Brooklyn. Whatever damages may be awarded, I shall take great pleasure in donating to the fund for a Brooklyn permanent memorial, dedicated to our soldiers, sailors, and marines."

Mr. Jonas challenged Mayor Hylan to establish the truth of a statement attributed to the Mayor and published on Sunday that Mr. Jonas had offered to arranges a Hylan mass meeting when Mr. Hylan was running for Mayor, but that the offer had been declined.

"As I have had no quarrel with the Mayor," said Mr. Jonas, "I want to be quite sure that he was correctly quoted before I answer him. Perhaps he will confirm the interview over his signature, stating just when and by whom this offer to hold a meeting for him before the last election, was made in my behalf. Then I shall be pleased to make my response in writing. Or, if the reporters who wrote the story will make affidavits as to its correctness, I shall be glad to present my compliments to his honor as well as to his master and his crew."

Mr. Jonas has placed the libel action in the hands of Jonas & Newburger of 115 Broadway, Manhattan. At the offices of that firm yesterday afternoon it was said that the summons in the action had been served, but that the complaint had not as yet been drawn. It had not been decided what sum Mr. Jonas would ask in damages.

In accepting the resignation of Mr. Jonas, which was offered at the meeting of the committee on Friday, Borough President Riegelmann said that he did so, believing that it would put an end to the controversy.

Congressman Delaney is a Democrat, and a friend of County Leader John H. McCooey. He is Exalted Ruler of the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks.

It was at the Elks Club that soldiers were entertained after the meeting in the Academy of Music last Wednesday night and told of the virtues of Mr. Hearst. Buses were on hand to take them to the club as they left the meeting hall.

Bill for State Welcome to Fighters.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Responding to a demand from returning officers and men, Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg of New York tonight introduced a concurrent resolution providing for the appointment by the State of a committee to welcome the repatriated fighters when they land in New York City. Mr. Steinberg explained that the controversy over the appointment of William R. Hearst on the welcoming committee named by Mayor Hylan was in part responsible for its introduction.

Under the Steinberg resolution the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, President pro tem. of the Senate, and Speaker of the Assembly would be members of the committee, with power to add to its membership "desirable, representative citizens."

HYLAN ASSAILS BULLOCK.

Says He Seeks to Interfere with Proper Administration of City.

In a letter to all his department heads Mayor Hylan declared yesterday that William Bullock, director of the Good Government League, was seeking to interfere with the proper conduct of the city administration. The Mayor declared that Bullock had requested that he be appointed Commissioner of Accounts, and because he had refused to appoint him Mr. Bullock was now attacking him.

The Standard Spark Plug of America

Ace of All Spark Plugs

Five minutes spent at the AC exhibit at the Automobile Show this week will set you straight on the Spark Plug question.

Here you will see cross sections of two AC Spark Plugs.

One is an AC Aircraft Plug, used on Liberty and Hispano-Suiza airplane motors during the war. The other is the AC Titan Plug which has for years been standard equipment on most makes of motor cars built in this country.

Basically, the plugs are the same.

Now, the army engineers selected AC Plugs for aircraft service only after the most exacting tests in which every spark plug made had the opportunity to qualify. It led all others in the high compression test, conducted by aircraft experts.

Most automotive engineers reached the same conclusion years ago. They have been equipping their cars with AC Plugs ever since.

Can you imagine more conclusive proof of AC superiority?

AC Plugs will be found on most of the cars at the show.

They should be found on your car also.

PALISADES SUICIDE LAID TO REST HERE

Sister and Brother Place Miss Packwood's Body in the Family Vault in Harlem.

RED CROSS AT FUNERAL

Brother Attributes Her Action to Nervous Breakdown, Caused by Overwork.

The funeral of Miss Azeele Packwood, the Red Cross automobile driver, who committed suicide on the Palisades near Englewood, N. J., was held yesterday from the Trinity Episcopal Church at 155th Street and Broadway.

The Episcopalian service was read by the Rev. M. H. Gates. In addition to the members of the family, twenty-five members of the Motor Corps of America, of which Miss Packwood had been a member, attended the service. The representatives of the family were George H. Packwood, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. M. Udaele of Buffalo, N. J., a sister, and her husband, who is an officer of the Engineering Corps of the United States Army. One of the floral pieces was a large wreath bearing a Red Cross. The interment took place in the Trinity Cemetery at 155th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, where the Packwod family has a vault. After the funeral, Mr. Packwood made the following statement:

"The vault in which my sister was buried today has been in possession of the Packwood family. My father served as an Acting Brigadier General in the Northern Army during the civil war, and is at present a member of the Loyal Legion of the 7th Regiment.

"My sister's body was identified by me yesterday at Englewood. Due to overwork in the Red Cross Motor Corps, my sister suffered a nervous breakdown in October, for which she was under the care of a physician for some time, and I can attribute her suicide to no other cause. She worked very hard in the Motor Corps, frequently from 5:30 o'clock in the morning until late at night. On Nov. 1 she transferred her property, consisting of real estate in Florida, stock and other personal property to my father, and stated that she intended to go to France as a nurse, which we thought she had done.

"My sister was of independent means, and I know of no marriage or affair which would account for her taking her own life."

KILLED BY EXPLOSION AT COLGATE WORKS

Two Men Die and Seven Are Injured When Electric Spark Ignites Fumes of Ether.

BUILDING IS WRECKED

Dr. George Pierce, Who Was Directing the Chemical Processes, One of the Victims.

An explosion in the laboratory of Colgate & Co., 72 and 74 Grand Street, Jersey City, yesterday wrecked the building and caused the death of two men and the injury of seven others.

The Dead.

PIERCE, Dr. GEORGE, Godfrey Road, Upper Montclair.
SWITZER, WALTER, 44 years old, 948 Hill Street, North Bergen.

The Injured.

COTTRELLO, GUARDO, 372 First Street, Jersey City, burns and shock.
EGAN, WILLIAM, 244 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, burns, bruises, and shock.
GORGAS, KONSTANTINE, 233 Grand Street, shock and burns.
GOLDERT, ROBERT, 120 Danforth Av., perhaps fatally burned.
HAFELE, WILLIAM, 23 Bergen Avenue, shock and burns.
McGEE, Lieutenant EDWARD, Engine Co. 3, overcome by smoke.
SUTTON, WILLIAM, Engine 2, burned in a second explosion.

In a laboratory on the first floor of the building Dr. Pierce, a chemist, was working with chemicals used in the manufacture of toilet preparations. The only account of what happened was contained in a statement made by William Egan, his assistant, later, in St. Francis Hospital. A solution containing ether was in a retort. Egan said that he noticed an unusually heavy smell of ether in the air and walked to a window and threw it up. He had his hands still upraised when the explosion came. Next he found himself on top of the gate of St. Joseph's Home, in the rear of the laboratory, and wedged in the iron work.

Egan said he saw the body of Dr. Pierce lying in the yard. The clothing of the chemist was on fire, but Egan was unable to go to his help. The doctor was rescued and was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where he died. Following the explosion, the building burst into flames. Those who were uninjured and those who were slightly injured got out in safety, and with the coming of the firemen the more seriously hurt were carried out.

In the main factory building, connected with the laboratory by a covered passage way, several thousand persons were at work. Colonel Austen Colgate, President of the Company, had the fire drill call sounded, and the employes left the building without undue excitement.

The main explosion occurred at about 10 o'clock. Half an hour later when the firemen were at work there was a second minor explosion that injured several firemen.

Then Came France—and Her Choice, Too, Was Marmon

THE triumphant rise of Marmon engineering to its present place of dominance has, as we predicted a year ago, gained the recognition overseas that America long has given it. But this international favor has come in a manner more impressive and from councils more qualified to judge than we foresaw or even dreamed of.

It was in the hour of peril, when French motor car factories were engaged in war work, that France, the birthplace of the modern motor car, turned to America for help to supply her great army staff with means of reliable transportation.

France knew what she wanted—roadability with light weight, speed with endurance, ease of riding, and long range of fuel and tires.

We consider it the highest endorsement that in this crucial time the French governmental motor car experts chose the Marmon 34 as the American product suited to their needs.

Likewise Marmon owners may well consider this a tribute to their judgment. For their choice has received the most substantial form of confirmation from the fountain head of motor car learning.

The policy behind the Marmon stabilizes the buyer's investment now, just as it has in the past. With no reduction in the cost of labor or materials, no over-supply of Marmon cars, no inflated price, no substitution of inferior parts or workmanship—there has been no shrinkage in the value, and no reduction in the price.

Nor can the casual observer distinguish any difference in the Marmon design of 1916 and the Marmon of 1919.

Scientific Construction and Advanced Engineering in the beginning have stabilized the Marmon design as well as the Marmon value.

We couldn't make the Maxwell any better; so we made it better looking

AN artist never frames his masterpiece until he finishes it.

So the new Maxwell, a completed work, is now robed in new garments.

They do not make it run any better. They make it look better.

Mr Whistler, himself, were he here today and saw a new Maxwell pass on the street, would probably give it a second look.

A little touch here, the straightening of a line there, the bringing of a fender a little closer to the wheel, a circassian walnut dash before you as you sit at the wheel, the strength lent by putting the gas tank in the rear, the multiplication of bonnet vents, the adding of three more painting coats, the increased thickness of the seat cushions—these, though but a few of the many changes made,—show the tendency of the new beauty.

It is in the sum of many little things that the full story is told.

The car was first checked off in squares, as a doctor sometimes marks off a man's chest and back to test every square inch of the lungs.

And there was an improvement made in nearly every square

When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.

But it wasn't.

It was the same, sound, go-get-there chassis built to stand the gaff of rough and ready driving, built to endure, to "stay put", to stand all the erratic moods of the careless driver.

It was a five year drive to reach this present peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results. For every one knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.

So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan—each new one better than the last.

There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one:

He has not paid for a false overhead.
He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.
He has not paid for experimental work.
He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.

You run no risk—and when you cast your eyes on it you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200 more.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

Opera "Isabeau."

"Isabeau," dramatic legend in three parts, libretto by Luigi Illicu, music by Pietro Mascagni, was revived by the Chicago Opera Association last night at the Lexington Theatre with the following cast:

King Raimondo.....Georges Baklanoff
Isabeau.....Anna Fitziu
Ermygarde.....Myrna Sharlow
Ermyntrude.....Irene Pavloska
Cornelius.....Constantin Nicolay
Folco.....Forrest Lamont
Gigletta.....Carolina Lazzari
Faidet.....Auguste Bouilliez
Roger.....Desire Defrere
An Old Man.....Vittorio Trevisan
Conductor—Giuseppe Sturani.

The opera was sung in Italian.

The touching tale of Isabeau and how she rode, as did the fair Lady Godiva, not even wearing her smock, once more illustrates the inclination shown by librettists to the Eternal Feminine unadorned. A pretty legend this, yet it centres on a theme that dates from Eve and the fig tree, running through the ages to that deathless lyric which ends with the motherly advice: "Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water." Isabeau is but a variation. Unlike Godiva she loves her Peeping Tom, whose name in this instance is Folco. It is a pity they must die at the end. Such curiosity as his, such heroism as hers—how any actress or opera singer would hate the ordeal of publicity!—should have been amply rewarded by marriage. And has not Ouida said that after a few years it doesn't make much difference to a man whether he is married to a Venus or a Hottentot?

When Mascagni knew less about the voice and little or nothing concerning the handling of the orchestra, he composed "Cavalleria Rusticana." It was a thunderbolt that startled the musical world. It still startles. But now that he is a master of his material, literally a musical maestro, his power of invention is exhausted. He has nothing new to say. And when most eloquent it is with borrowed thunder. The score of "Isabeau" is interesting for a musician, notwithstanding its desultory, nay, fragmentary character. The old febrile glow is there; also the urge and dynamic surge, and when the smoke has cleared away after some successful firing we admire the marksmanship but look in vain for the target.

There is none. All the grandiloquent proclamations go for naught. The book casts up some opportunities for pomp and circumstance and the spinning of such themes as sex, fidelity, idealist, tortured souls, & Co. Yet we never feel the music under our skins. It is cerebral with mock-passionate trimmings. Bathos not pathos. The last scene is the best, the first the worst. The undraping is simply stupid. Adam's first wife, Lilith, on a Christmas card. Folco's scene is near-Wagnerian and was almost sung by Forrest Lamont in the same artificial style.

Miss Fitziu gave us no notion of her capabilities in "Goyescas," by the ill-fated Spaniard, Granados, when the opera was heard at the Metropolitan Opera House. She certainly sang more effectively as Isabeau. She is handsome. She has a brilliant voice, and a showy method of acting. In a word, operatic. She received plenty of applause. But the artist of the evening was Baklanoff in a role that would drive any King to pluck out his royal whiskers. Mr. Lamont has temperament, excellent vocal resources, and a plentiful lack of stage presence.

At times he seemed to emulate the pianissimo of Caruso—who was sitting with Scotti in a box—and then he would explode. It was very disconcerting. The orchestral playing was generally noisy, ragged, and without atmosphere. But "Isabeau" is charmless and the performance followed suit. "Lodoletta" is inconceivable without Caruso. "Isabeau" is pretty pallid stuff without Rose Ralsa—who is unhappily still indisposed. As to the comparative musical worth of the two operas, we fear it is a case of "cinquanta-cinquanta."

"ROBIN HOOD" DELIGHTS.

American Singers Earn Many Encores of Songs of Early 90s.

"Robin Hood," the most revived of comic operas, had its positively last pre-prohibition production by the American Singers at the Park Theatre last night, and the well-known "Brown October Ale," the famous "Promise Me," and all the other songs of the vintage of the early nineties earned so many encores that only the second act in Sherwood Forest had ended when other theatres were turning out their crowds on Broadway.

Orville Harrold soared to supertonotes in Robin's serenade thrice over. Anne Bussert twice sang the flute cadenza from "Lucia," which the prima donna or composer had interpolated in Maid Marian's air. Cora Tracy was called back to resing the promissory notes of the contralto classic, and so was Waterous with the "Nine Tailors," while other glees and dances were repeated till the company, not the audience, was tired.

William Danforth, for the first time as Sheriff of Nottingham, made a personal success even with many who recalled the Bostonians and Barnabee. Gladys Caldwell, Kate Condon, James Stephens, Bertram Peacock, and other sang, and John McGhie conducted. A first-night awkwardness was soon speeded up to good effect, and the singing was so good throughout as to promise a run for Mr. Hinshaw's latest revival.

"La Reine Fiammette" Sung Again.

Xavier Leroux's "La Reine Fiammette" had its second performance before a socially brilliant house at the Metropolitan last evening, when Miss Farrar, Messrs. Lazaro, Didur and Mardones sang, and Mr. Monteux conducted. The death of the composer, reported yesterday from Paris, where he had been a well-known musician for twenty years, was remarked by local operagoers as a striking coincidence at the time when his works had just come to a hearing on the New York stage. His "Le Chemineau" will be repeated by another company in town next Monday.

Helene Romanoff, Soprano, Sings.

Helene Romanoff, a soprano of explosive though dramatic style and good stage presence, made her début here in song recital last evening at Aeolian Hall. She sang many songs in Russian, which were appreciated by her compatriots in the audience, and by others with the help of translations by Cecil Cowdray and Sigmund Spaeth. Richard Hageman assisted at the piano. Among songs marked "new" were lyrics by Arensky, Vassilenko, Sachnowsky, and Rachmaninoff.

The Shows Only New Car

Don't Fail to See and Ride In It—Sells $1395

The Essex—Is Now Ready

The most interesting exhibit at all of the automobile shows this year is the only new car—the Essex.

Its coming has been looked forward to for more than a year. And so when the first showing was announced on January 16 every Essex sales room was crowded by motorists who wanted to see the car about which they had heard so much.

Thousands have since ridden in it.

Note the praising words they have for it. It combines the wanted qualities of both the light weight cheap car which appeals because of its low cost and economy of operation with the endurance, performance, elegance and easy riding qualities of the large costly cars. It does this in a way that no other car has ever done.

You Should Not Only See It---
You Should Ride in the Essex

No sensational claims are made for the Essex, except those that are made by the thousands who have learned to know its qualities.

As you view the various exhibits at the automobile shows you will be reminded of the cars you know intimately from having seen them on the streets. A few changes in body designs, perhaps, but nothing of importance mechanically, has been produced during the past year.

The Essex, therefore, is the distinctive car of the year.

It is light in weight. It has all the qualities that make the light cheap car attractive. But it also has the easy riding qualities, and the performance, the long endurance and the refinement of the large and costly cars.

It has poise and will retain its rigidity throughout long hard service.

These are things which any observer will immediately notice. And that is why instead of advertising the claims as is usually done, we merely ask you to come, see and ride in the Essex.

THE BRITISH EMBARGO.

The calmness and patience with which Englishmen receive our outburst about their embargo is praiseworthy. The impatience and irritation which some of us, including officials, show on the same subject is otherwise. The curious thing about it is that the protectionists think that they have a vested right in protectionism, but do not concede the same right to British free traders. Yet an embargo upon our exports is only an obscure phase of protectionism. If we cannot export we cannot import, and that is the object of exclusionist tariffs. We have proved this by selling the world's markets to a standstill. We have not sold them all that they would like to buy, but we have sold them more than they can pay for. Never in the history of the world has there been such a demonstration of the folly of the old notion that the welfare of a nation consists in selling so much more than is bought that the difference must be paid for in gold. We have more gold than is good for us, more than any other country ever held. Other nations are proportionately short of gold to maintain their credit basis. Yet we are demanding that they shall buy from us, and at the same time are lending them less freely. How is the trade to be paid for, if we compel it to be done?

The motives for the embargo are candidly set forth in the cable message to THE TIMES published yesterday. First on the list of embargoed goods, nearly all of large importance to our trade, are food and raw materials. England thinks that in the present condition of the world's short supply of both they ought to be dealt in under restriction. How is the good faith of that to be doubted here, where appeals about "four million starving" are freshly posted, and tell but part of the truth? England needs our food and materials, and can better afford to pay our prices than others. But England denies itself that others may have more, and allows us to realize the top of the market, modcrated only by our charity.

Mr. HOOVER'S message makes it clear by what a judicious mixture of business and charity our practical monopoly of relieving the world wants is to be administered. If we were to act otherwise than advised by him, and not in the way controlled by England, we should be subject to censure by the representatives of the world at Paris. Not yet can the food of man, beast, and manufactories be dealt in as a prize to the longest purse. We may ask what buyers are willing to pay—and none who are starving are so poor that they cannot promise to pay—but there should be priority among buyers, and gifts to those whose promissory notes are unacceptable. The incident is a demonstration of the necessity of some standard by which to measure and limit the fierceness of American protectionism and German competition. Certainly for the immediate future, and perhaps even in full peace, the Paris Conference will have an economic phase as well as military and political.

The next important class of goods mentioned is boots and shoes. The entire industry in England is Government operated, under stress of war demands, not only for herself but for those better supplied by England than by us during blockades and other interruptions of normal trade. Is not an industry under such conditions entitled to a breathing time for reconstruction? Looking at the matter from the point of view of our interests, are not the prices of boots and shoes high enough here so that our consumers would welcome an increase of our domestic supply, withdrawn from foreign buyers? Our domestic trade is twentyfold our maximum exports of this sort. The embargoed portion is a trifle to us, but much to those whose market would be demoralized by the surplus which we could spare, and could better use. What folly it would be to retaliate by refusing to allow England to use our raw materials! We are masters in our own market, and are best judges of whether it is to our interest to sell or consume raw materials. Why put ourselves under restrictions for such poor reasons when we resent England putting us under restrictions for such good reasons? Why start an economic war before the greatest war is over? Why start anything of which we cannot see the end? Why start something which would put us among the first nations of the world to be disciplined by the league to enforce right by force of reason used in the interest of humanity?

PEACE IN THE ADRIATIC.

No one can profit from the continuance of recent disagreements between the Italians and the Jugoslavs but those who are the enemies of both. That this racial feeling was deliberately incited by Austro-Hungarian authorities before and during the war is indisputable, and the difficulties that have recently made so much trouble, while traceable in part to lack of tact among representatives of both sides or to unwise methods pursued by friendly Powers, have undoubtedly been fostered by German, Austrian, and Magyar influences which are hostile alike to Italian prosperity and Jugoslav stability.

The Congress of Rome last April, which was a brilliant demonstration of the possibility of harmony between Italians and Jugoslavs, is recalled in the letter from Mr. SAVITCH, former head of the Press Bureau of the Serbian Foreign Office, which is published elsewhere on this page. The friends of both peoples can wish nothing better than that the two Governments might follow the policy which he suggests, and which is also advocated by strong liberal elements in Italy, of getting together once more, without intermediaries, to settle their difference on a basis of give and take. It seems quite unlikely that either side could obtain its maximum demands, and it is quite certain that for either side to do so would mean continued ill-feeling. But it is wholly possible that a territorial and economic settlement might be reached which would be readily accepted by the great majority of Italians and the great majority of Jugoslavs.

The chance of such a settlement will be much greater if negotiations are carried on directly between the representatives of the two peoples than if any foreign mediation, however well disposed, is invoked. The complicated questions of the Adriatic coast can best be settled by the peoples who live there, who will have to go on living together, on whatever basis, after the peace treaty is signed, and who have the greatest possible interest in making such arrangements that neither will be embittered against the other. Foreign influence, unless expressly requested by both sides for purposes of arbitration, is likely to do more harm than good.

It cannot be forgotten by reasonable men in Italy and in Jugoslavia that the Jugoslav territories will require great economic development and that by geographic necessity the greater part of the foreign assistance in this development must come from Italy. It is not to the interest of the Jugoslavs to alienate the people who will ordinarily furnish most of the engineers and capitalists to develop Jugoslavia, nor is it to the interest of the Italians to make enemies in the country which will offer the most profitable field for Italian enterprise. The hotspurs of both sides have made enough trouble; the reasonable men, if they get together once more without suspicion of outside influence, can in all probability reach a decision which will satisfy the great mass of both peoples.

MAJOR CASUALTIES IN FRANCE.

The table of major casualties of thirty combat divisions given out by General MARCH, Chief of Staff, should have the effect of silencing those critics of the military operations in France who have complained that units in which they were interested suffered enormous losses, because they did not get the benefit of adequate artillery preparation, or were not supported by other divisions in the same operation. Major casualties are said to include the killed, those who died of wounds, the missing, and prisoners taken by the enemy. The War Department's list made up to Jan. 10, and therefore not complete, shows these casualties to be 56,592, divided as follows: 27,762 killed, 11,396 died of wounds, 14,649 missing in action, and 2,705 prisoners. The missing, with few exceptions, may be accounted as dead; their bodies could not be found, and these were cases of men killed but so dismembered as to be unrecognizable. From every army there are deserters, not necessarily to the enemy, but the American Expeditionary Forces had very few of them.

According to the table furnished by General MARCH, the 1st Division, a Regular organization, had more major casualties than any other division. The total appears as 5,248. But if the major casualties of the 5th and 6th Regiments of Marines, which were attached to the 2d Division, should be added to the casualties given for that division, 2,965, its total would be almost equal to, if it did not slightly exceed, the sum of the major losses of the 1st Division. The 2d Division was composed of Regulars and Marines. The major casualties of the Marine brigade, according to a late dispatch from Washington, were 1,562 killed, 697 missing, and 35 prisoners, a total of 2,294, but they are incomplete. In all reports of losses in France those of the Marines have been kept separate from the combined casualties of other American regiments, an arrangement that has caused a good deal of confusion in tabulating. The only explanation seems to be that the Marines are a navy and not an army force.

The 1st and 2d Divisions (the latter including the Marines) had the heaviest major casualties because they were a long time at the front and were in the thick of many battles. A National Guard division, the 28th Pennsylvania, was harder hit than the 3d Division of Regulars, the totals of major casualties being, respectively, 3,890 and 3,617. New York's 27th (National Guard) Division and 77th (National Army) Division are twelfth and tenth on the casualty list, with 2,194 and 2,692 losses, incurred chiefly in the great assault on the Hindenburg line in the one case, and in the desperate drive through the Argonne Forest in the other case. The 77th arrived in France long after the 1st and 2d Regular Divisions; and the 27th reached the scene of operations after a detention of many months at Spartanburg. A division of much promise, the 81st, (Wildcat,) saw very little fighting, having only 370 major casualties. It was the fortune of war. And so it was with several other combat units on General MARCH'S list. Those divisions that lost heavily were either a considerable time in France, or, on arriving at the front, they were thrown into some of the fiercest battles of the war. This is the key to the major casualty list. All fought with indomitable resolution, whether National Army, National Guard, or Regular regiments. Intensive training and a good cause soon made invincible troops of raw material. It must be borne in mind with regard to the regiments of the Regular Army engaged that there were comparatively few old soldiers in their ranks.

In its issue of Jan. 17 The Stars and Stripes, the organ of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, declined to decide which was the best division in the American Army, because "we do not feel equal just now" to a fight to the death with the entire A. E. F. minus one division." The divisional spirit is so robust—and shall we say sensitive?—that the question of primacy will never be settled. The number of casualties suffered will not be accepted as a test of efficiency and as a measure of prowess.

AN OMISSION.

Long words are one of the recognized decorations of diplomacy. Their use comports with the diplomatic temperament. Moreover, in recent years diplomacy has found a special use for long words which by common consent mean nothing at all. They are convenient in many kinds of diplomatic literature, particularly in what is known as a "formula"—which means a sonorous sequence of words that looks well in the papers, and conceals for some time the fact that you have had to leave a difficult question unsettled. But when diplomats and correspondents writing about diplomacy use long words they ought to agree beforehand either on the meaning of those words, or else that the words have no meaning.

Otherwise there will come up some such difficulty as appears in certain dispatches about the mandatory principle in dealing with the German colonies. We have been used to seeing the word "mandatory" used as descriptive of the nation which takes over the government of a colony, and "mandate" as meaning the decision of the Peace Conference authorizing it to do so.

But now we have the suggestion that the United States "may have to accept mandatories," meaning on the face of it that we might have to reconcile ourselves to being governed, in the name of the League of Nations, by Liberia, Siam, the Republic of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, or the Anti-Saloon League.

Since it is impossible that our famous three truckloads of documents did not include an English dictionary, it must be that some of our conferees are giving new meanings to words. The conference has made a great mistake in not appointing at the outset a Committee on Definitions, Punctuation, and Diacritical Markings.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

It is an interesting Parliament that meets today. It is curious enough that the five-year term dates from a Liberal Government—that of 1911. Originally the Septennial, then the Triennial or Annual, Parliament was the desire or hope. At least, this is a new Parliament, its "mandate," whatever this much-abused and unexplained word may mean, is still to be made fact. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S election, for his it was, proved not too much in regard to what the electorate wants, at least not the soldiers and sailors, not too strongly represented. Transportation, housing, the settlement of the soldiers on the land, the solidity of efforts for the retention of the "key" industries, these were parts of the hurried program of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, not looking forward to or really responsible for any program. He had won the war. His return to power was the unconditional answer of Great Britain to that.

That Mr. LLOYD GEORGE is busy with the great international settlements abroad; that old Unionists like Mr. BONAR LAW and Lord CURZON still seem to occupy colgns of vantage, to which their political experience seems not to entitle them, is mere matter of formula and official routine. What can Mr. LLOYD GEORGE himself, one of the shrewdest observers as well as one of the most powerful changers of political and economic and social conditions, do or think?

With the old conditions of labor, with everything that the "intellectualists," SIDNEY WEBB and his crowd, have done, with unionism and all the peculiarities of syndicalists, internationalists, and the rest, the course of things in Great Britain must have made him familiar. With the new race, not so new to him, of "shop stewards," the young, uneasy megalomaniac race of labor lords in Great Britain, he has still to deal; and he seems to be "observing" them.

That there is an exterior Bolshevist compulsion on these people seems hard to believe. A lot of new labor leaders have taken loud precedence of their elders. Hours must be shortened, wages must be raised. It is the old story of a class that amid all the rationing has survived and been most prosperous. That a class, not too sure of itself, and temporarily the best-to-do in England, should arrogate to itself the measures to be pursued by the new Parliament, will doubtless interest Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, to the extent of its votes.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Making Much Out of Very Little.

Many, and far too many, people, some of them in uniform and others in civilian dress, are coming back from Europe, these days, with stories and reports that illustrate the truth of the old, old saying in regard to comparisons. These people balance the merits and demerits of the several races or nations with which they have been in contact—usually for only brief periods and in conditions wholly abnormal—and almost all of them show the tendency, condemned by every logician, to argue from the particular to the general. The result is the usual—the almost inevitable—one of reaching conclusions entirely wrong and of exaggerating enormously the importance of the irritability and antagonism that invariably arise when the representatives of unlike civilizations rub up against each other.

Human beings, or the great majority of them, are so constituted that differences in habits and standards from themselves seem to be evidences of inferiority, and it is this fact that accounts for the dislikes which not a few of our soldiers have developed for the French and English troops with or near whom they have been brigaded. Doubtless the French soldiers have done the same thing as regards both the English and the Americans, the English soldiers as regards the Americans and the French.

Those who retail this sort of talk forget that ill-tempered gossip of the same sort can be collected in any amount right here at home by anybody with time to waste in listening to what our city and country folk say about each other or to the mutual criticism in which folk living in different parts of the country constantly indulge. Really, however, the inhabitants of the several sections neither hate nor despise one another—they are only bothered and fretted because their ideas on a good many subjects, most of them trivial, are unlike.

And that is all there is to the so solemnly exploited hostility between the soldiers who only a few weeks ago were risking their lives side by side in equally heroic and effective defense of the cause in which they all believed.

Comparing Germans and French.

Closely related to the reports about discords among the late associates in fighting Germany are the deductions hastily drawn as to the discovery by the men in the American Army of Occupation that the German, when on his good behavior, is a kindly and companionable person, and that when conditions are favorable, as they were and are in Treves and Coblenz, his municipal and domestic housekeeping is not equaled in French towns where the conditions have been much worse.

We are asked to believe that, as a result, the American soldiers have forgotten all that they have read and heard, and all that they saw for themselves, as to the behavior of the German when he is waging war on land and sea. That, too, is a case of reasoning from the particular to the general, complicated by failure to remember that what the less thoughtful of the "doughboys" are now really comparing is not the German with the Frenchman, but the comfort and safety he is now enjoying with the hardships and perils of war in its most desperate form.

Something of an inclination toward fraternization is the natural consequence, and the Germans are quite intelligent enough to seek and obtain what advantages they can by bearing themselves courteously toward men whom, not long ago, they were calling "pigdogs"—men whom now less than ever have they any reason for liking.

An Expert Discusses Assimilation.

More in detail than ever before, perhaps, were the facts in regard to certain alien elements of our population presented in the testimony given by LAJOS STEINER of the War Trade Board when called before the Senate Propaganda Committee. Speaking from much knowledge based on personal observation, Mr. STEINER emphatically declared that of the almost innumerable foreign language newspapers published in this country, many were anti-American and practically all the rest non-American. He gave as the reason for this the fact, well enough known long ago, but not sufficiently appreciated, that the very existence of these papers depends on preventing, or delaying as long as possible, the Americanization of their readers.

As soon as the immigrant can read the papers printed in English he not only does it, but he soon loses interest in the others, and with full assimilation his subscription lapses. In exceptional cases the foreign-language paper performs its one legitimate duty—that of assisting the newly arrived immigrant to meet the difficulties encountered by him in a strange land, the speech of which is incomprehensible to him, but to persist in this policy requires an amount of self-sacrifice and an indifference to private interest not common to humanity, and the most often chosen alternative is an effort to perpetuate "colony" life, the more or less exclusive use of the old tongue.

Other agencies antagonistic to the Americanization of the immigrant mentioned by Mr. STEINER were the foreign-language churches and schools, and the "bankers" whose interest lies in persuading the foreigner to make frequent ocean journeys and to deposit his savings in the old country instead of in the United States. He offered no suggestions as to what should be done to minimize or abolish the evils he described. That problem, and it is not a simple one, he left to the Senators for solution.

Freedom Only in Russia!

When a man, speaking in an American city, excites the applause of numerous auditors by telling them that "Russia is the only place where men and women can be free," the fact raises a good many rather serious questions.

The first of them—Why did he make a statement at once so stupid and so false?—is easily answered. The speaker was JAMES LARKIN, who is himself as much of a Bolshevik as he can find time to be in the moments when he doesn't have to be a Sinn Feiner and an exponent of what in this country is called the I. W. W. But this statement was made in Boston, and it is difficult to understand the existence there of more than a small handful of out-and-out lunatics that are desirous to have the only sort of freedom now existing in Russia. It is the freedom of a small class to kill and steal, and the freedom of everybody else to be murdered and robbed.

Of course Mr. LARKIN would not put the case exactly that way, but no other way suggested itself to him, so he abstained from what he knew or felt would be the dangers of definition. Mr. LARKIN has been credited with ability of a kind and with moving eloquence. That is what makes him dangerous, but one observes that he prefers America to Russia as a place in which to do his preaching.

AN ADRIATIC SETTLEMENT.

It Can Best Be Reached by Direct Negotiation Between Italians and Jugoslavs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Italo-Jugoslav controversy over the territories ceded to Italy by the secret treaty of London is going on, embittering the feelings on both sides. Whatever might be the decision of the Peace Conference at Versailles with America as an umpire, the present controversy might result, if not stopped, in a deeper misunderstanding between the Italians and the Jugoslavs, prejudicial to their best interests. They are neighbors and very much interdependent. Their co-operation in the future on those now disputed shores offers to both nations many and obvious advantages. Jugoslavs and Italians have repeated to satiety their arguments before the public of this country in behalf of their respective attitudes, and nothing more can be gained by further arguing.

A fair and honorable issue, however, remains open to them. Is not their quarrel at least partly instigated and secretly managed by an enemy who sees in the Italo-Jugoslav dispute the best opportunity for asserting again his own mastery over the Adriatic? Are they not both, perhaps, victims of a cleverly planned intrigue, which adroitly exploits a superficial antagonism of two very susceptible peoples, not allowing them to see their real and permanent interests pointing to friendship and co-operation?

In spite of everything that has been done and said to estrange the Italians and the Jugoslavs, and, if possible, to create an unbridgable gulf between them, is it not very encouraging that when these two peoples met each other directly and spoke openly, as was the case last April at the Congress of Nationalities in Rome, they were able to arrive easily at an agreement and to create an atmosphere of perfect mutual confidence. Let us, the Italians and the Jugoslavs, be chary of high words, but let us make a sincere effort to resuscitate the spirit which presided over and inspired our mutual discussions at Rome last April.

Under the protection of that white dove of peace and trust, Italians and Jugoslavs may by direct negotiations of their representatives reach an agreement more valuable to both of them than even a decision imposed upon them by the Peace Conference at Versailles. A solution of all principal questions surely could be found by themselves, and the minor details which might present difficulties for settlement by direct negotiations should be referred to the Peace Conference at Versailles. Then the Peace Conference would not act as an outside authority imposing a judgment upon unruly parties, but as a friend invoked in to help two other friends to find an issue without the susceptibilities of either being hurt. In such a case we shall have not only a solution of the Adriatic difficulties, but also a basis of friendship between Italy and Jugoslavia promising well for a durable peace and a speedy recovery of their countries, so terribly visited by the evils of the war.

Not Educated in Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have recently read your editorial article entitled "Queer Results of German Education," and find in it this statement: "Professor Clarence Aurelius Skinner of Tufts, Berlin, 1896-9."

I feel that you owe a double apology for this statement. In the first place, Clarence Aurelius Skinner's name was not on the list of sixty-two recently published by the Senate, nor is he a professor at Tufts College.

In the second place, my name, which was on the list, is used wrongly by yourself. Your implication is that I was educated in Germany and that I received a degree from the University of Berlin. I was never in Berlin in my life, and during the years when you gleefully imagined me drinking in Kaiserism pure and undefiled I was attending a high school in the City of Brooklyn.

The nearest I ever came to a degree in a German educational institution was in the Summer of 1913, when my wife and I visited Europe. We spent about ten days of this time in Germany and spent one night in the City of Heidelberg. I was shown through the college there with some other American travelers. That is the extent of my education in Germany.

I have written to the committee of the United States Senate challenging them to prove that I have had anything to do with German propaganda. I challenge you to make a thorough investigation of my record as an American citizen.

Art and Morals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How can one be a music lover and yet a pirate?

They were all such refined music lovers in my section in the parquet at Carnegie Hall Saturday evening, at the symphony concert. Noble strains ought to bring out the best in human nature. Yet, when, on leaving, I dropped my opera glasses, valuable to me on account of associations, (first Parsifal performance in New York, Ober-Ammergau, 1910, &c.,) some one among these nice people picked them up and took them home.

A VICTIM.

New York, Feb. 2, 1919.

WANTS WHEAT PRICE GUARANTEED TO 1920

But Van Dusen Opposes Operating of Elevators by Food Administration.

WOULDN'T OPEN EXCHANGES

Thinks Closing Them and Controlling Exports and Imports May Reduce Loss to Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—F. C. Van Dusen of Minneapolis, appearing today before the House Committee on Agriculture, which is considering a bill to appropriate $1,250,000,000 to make good the guarantee of the wheat price in 1919, urged that the war powers of the Food Administration should be continued until June, 1920, when the $2.26 guaranteed price expires.

Mr. Van Dusen, who is a large wheat dealer, opposed granting authority to the Food Administration to build, buy, or lease grain elevators or warehouses. He said that there was no good reason for opening the Grain Exchanges during the period of the Government's guarantee, as, in his opinion, there would be no futures to deal in. Other witnesses took the opposite position, and urged that the bill contain a provision to permit the Exchanges to do business under a Government license.

"The Government's guarantee to wheat producers should be made good," said Mr. Van Dusen, "and this should be done through a fund administered by a Government agency sufficient to take care of any loss and to establish credit on which to carry on business. The Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration is the best agency for making the guarantee effective. It is too early now to make a specific plan under which this agency should operate, as any plan must be governed to a large extent by the size of the wheat crop to be handled, and of course that is problematical."

The bill proposes to pay the farmer the guaranteed price of $2.26 for wheat offered for sale up to June, 1920. Some experts have estimated that the loss to the Government or consumers will reach more than $5,000,000,000. Wheat prices generally are fixed by the Liverpool market, and the belief exists that there will be at least a difference of a dollar a bushel between the guaranteed price and the market price in 1919. The consuming public will demand that wheat be sold at such a figure; experts for the Agricultural Department assert, that bread can be bought for 5 cents a loaf when normal times return some time next year. The problem now before the committee is how this loss shall be met.

"A good many people think it would be better to let the loss come through the Treasury than through the consuming public," observed Chairman Lever in the course of the hearing.

"If the President is authorized to control imports and exports," replied Mr. Van Dusen, "and close produce exchanges to future trading, this loss will be to some extent minimized."

"Do you think the end could be accomplished through a licensing of produce exchanges by the Government?" the witness was asked.

"I think that such a move would be unwise," he replied. "If you want the Government to fix the maximum loss, the place for the Government to settle with the farmer is at the country elevator. It would seem, however, that it might not be unwise to leave the price for export, and for the miller and the cost of flour, to be worked out by a Government agency, according to world conditions."

"But if the Grain Corporation is to control all exports of wheat and is to buy all the grain in the country," interjected Representative Anderson, "it can sell at any price, so that the price in the United States will be fixed by the President instead of by the world market price."

"I can hardly conceive that the President will not give due consideration to the living conditions here and aim to see that the price of bread is fixed upon that basis," replied the witness.

"Determining of the world market level on an economic basis would be through the exchanges," asserted Representative Anderson, "and not by any arbitrary methods of the President's dictum."

"I am afraid it would be disastrous to open the exchanges," insisted the witness.

"We are faced with one of two horns of a dilemma," said Mr. Anderson. "Either we must accept the proposition that the Government must maintain the guaranteed price and pass the charge on to the consumer through fixing the price on wheat products, or we must accept the other horn and admit the difference between the fixed price and the normal price and get some method of determining how that difference shall be met."

There is a wide difference of opinion as to what methods the Government shall adopt to guarantee the price to farmers and keep down the price of wheat products. There is a general agreement in Congress, however, that the Government must keep its promise to the farmer and pay him the guaranteed price for all wheat offered up to 1920 grown in 1918 and 1919.

MAY APPLY FOR DISCHARGE.

Pershing Asked to Send Back Men Whose Families Need Them.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — General Pershing has been authorized by the War Department to send home for immediate discharge from the army any drafted or enlisted man who presents convincing evidence of sickness or other distress in his family. The department announced today that men may make their own requests for discharge, or the request may be made direct to General Pershing by letter or cable by a member of the soldier's family or other interested and responsible persons, accompanied by sufficient testimony that sickness or other distress exists.

General Pershing also has been authorized to discharge in Europe, on their own application, men who have good reasons for leaving the army and who waive any claim for sea travel allowances from Europe to the United States. Men so discharged will be paid travel allowances from their station in Europe to the port of embarkation and from Hoboken, N. J., to the place of induction into the service.

These instructions apply to enlisted or drafted men who entered the service after April 1, 1917. Men who entered the service before that date may be furloughed to the United States when sickness or distress in the soldier's family is clearly indicated.

"It must be understood," says the department's announcement, "that discharges or furloughs of this kind will be given only in exceptional cases. Requests for discharge must clearly show that the sickness is of such a critical nature as will require the soldier's immediate presence or that distress in a man's family is such as cannot be relieved by allotments of money made under the War Risk Insurance act."

NEW FIGHT FOR SUFFRAGE.

Anthony Resolution Is Up for Senate Action Next Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The effort of supporters of woman suffrage to put through the Susan B. Anthony resolution for a suffrage amendment to the Constitution will be considered again in the Senate next Monday, Senator Jones of New Mexico, who is handling the fight, having given notice today that he would call it up on that day. At the same time it became known that the suffrage proponents had gained one vote since the resolution was defeated two months ago—that of Senator Pollock, who succeeds Mr. Benet of South Carolina.

With Senator Pollock's vote the suffragists would lack but one vote of the two-thirds necessary to adopt the resolution. This vote they are working hard to get. Senator Pollock's vote would make 63 for the resolution, and it requires 64 for its adoption. It was defeated by two votes before.

Pressure has been brought to bear on Democratic Senators in the last few days. Senator Trammel of Florida, who was recorded against the resolution at the last vote, is particularly one of those upon whom the suffrage proponents have turned their forces. It became known tonight that President Wilson had sent a cablegram to the Florida Senator urging him to vote for the resolution. Mr. Trammel declined to say tonight what his attitude would be when the resolution came up Monday.

Senator Trammel was visited on Sunday by a delegation of suffrage advocates from Florida. The Florida Legislature is said to be in favor of the resolution by any appreciable majority, but it is not in session and will not meet before this session of Congress ends. So, in the delegation that called upon Mr. Trammel, were a number of legislators from both Florida houses, who told him that the Legislature was anxious to have him support the resolution.

If the suffrage advocates cannot prevail upon Mr. Trammel they have hopes that some other Democratic Senator, persuaded by the President's efforts, will swing into line. However, they are making no forecast as to how the vote will stand.

The suffrage leaders had hoped that Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who succeeded Senator Drew, might come to their support, but Senator Moses told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that he would vote in the negative.

"The Legislature of my State has not asked me to vote for suffrage," said Mr. Moses. "That leaves me free to exercise my own discretion. I am opposed to woman suffrage and intend to vote against the resolution next Monday."

Senator Borah of Idaho is another Republican whom the suffrage supporters have half counted upon since the resolution was defeated. The Legislature of his State has indorsed woman suffrage, but the Senator is opposed to it. He would give no indication today of how he intended to vote on the resolution on Monday, but the anti-suffrage leaders were insisting that he would be against it.

Miss Alice Paul of the National Woman's Party said tonight that the Democrats would take the responsibility in their own hands if they failed to adopt the resolution on Monday.

"This is the last chance the Democratic Party will have to take advantage of the opportunity they have neglected for the last five years to pass the amendment enfranchising the 20,000,000 women of the country," said Miss Paul. "Women recognize that it is entirely in the hands of the Democratic Party to pass the suffrage measure, and will hold them responsible if it is not passed."

SEND RELIEF TO NEAR EAST.

Committee Appropriates $1,054,000 for Use in February.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Committee for Relief in the Near East, after a luncheon for workers in the $30,000,000 drive, held yesterday at the Bankers' Club, $1,054,000 was voted to supply immediate relief to sufferers in the Holy Land during the month of February. The committee also decided to aid the State Department in getting and transmitting information to American citizens concerning relatives and friends in the Near East.

Relief commissions, it was announced, will open offices for this purpose in Jerusalem, Constantinople, and Erivan. Lists of persons with American connections will be cabled to the headquarters of the committee here. Of the allotment made yesterday, $250,000 will be forwarded to Constantinople, $50,000 to Syria, $50,000 to Palestine, $200,000 to the Caucasus, $100,000 to Erivan, $200,000 to Tabiz, $200,000 as an emergency fund for Mosul Bakuba and the Caucasus, and the remaining $4,000 to the Syrian Relief Fund.

A resolution asking that Arthur Curtiss James, who is in Paris, request President Wilson and Herbert Hoover to devote the largest possible share of the $100,000,000 appropriation of Congress for relief in the Near East was submitted to Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Executive Committee. Team workers reported at the luncheon yesterday that $59,000 had been contributed since Saturday. The All-Greek team reported $7,000 in small contributions.

The first contribution from a New York corporation was also reported. This was a check for $20,000 from the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, $10,000 of which is to be credited to New York, the remainder for Arizona and New Mexico. At the suggestion of Cleveland H. Dodge the campaign will go on for another week.

ASKS JUDGES TO AID WOMEN

Mrs. Rippin Says That Delinquents Should Be Investigated by Court.

The National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor began a three-day conference on problems arising from the reconstruction period yesterday in the home of Adolph Lewisohn, 881 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Lewisohn is President of the committee. Miss Helen Varick Boswell presided, and the speakers included Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippen, Mrs. Jennie Griffiths, Mrs. Margaretta Neals, Mrs. Sara Conboy, Dr. Mary B. Harris, and Mrs. Jessie D. Hodder.

Mrs. Rippen, who is Director of the Law Enforcement Division, section on Women and Girls, of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, spoke of the need of greater co-operation among the Judges, police, and institutional heads. She declared that Judges should cease to look on delinquent women brought before them as criminals, but should acquaint themselves with the circumstances back of the delinquency. She asserted that of all our institutions, the courts were the slowest to become socialized.

Industrial training for women prisoners was discussed by Mrs. Hodder, who is Superintendent of the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women. She said many of the State, Federal, and service flags flying both in her State and abroad were made by the women prisoners, who had given more than 2,000 pairs of socks to the army. The conference will be continued today.

BOWLES OUT OF SHIPPING.

Rear Admiral's Resignation Will Be Effective on March 15.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The resignation of former Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles as assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was announced today by the Shipping Board.

Mr. Bowles wrote to Director General Piez on Jan. 25 asking to be relieved March 15. Mr. Piez accepted the resignation with expressions of regret and with congratulations upon Mr. Bowles's work. The board's statement made public with the coresponcence said Mr. Bowles probably would retain his connection with the board in some other capacity.

MOVE TO KEEP ALIVE SPIRIT OF ROOSEVELT

Permanent Memorial National Committee Opens Office and Asks Suggestions.

APPEAL TO BE NATION-WIDE

First Gift Comes from a Policeman Friend, Who Was Also a Soldier Under the Colonel.

The Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee opened headquarters yesterday at 1 Madison Avenue, with Herman Hagedorn as Acting Secretary. It was announced that all contributions would be promptly acknowledged and turned over to the Treasurer, Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank. It is expected that branch committees will be established over the country. All the money contributed toward the memorial, it was said, would be spent for that purpose, as administration expenses were being borne by separate subscriptions.

The first man to send his subscription after the opening of the office yesterday was Captain Edward F. Bourke of the 33d Precinct, an old friend of Theodore Roosevelt, who subscribed $10. The honor of establishing the first local branch of the committee goes to Greenfield Hill, a hamlet three miles north of Fairfield, Conn. The committee announced that the type of memorial had not been decided upon, and that all suggestions would be gratefully received and considered. The committee issued the following statement:

The Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee consists exclusively of men and women who were in one way or another closely associated with Colonel Roosevelt. They knew him in public life and at home; they knew better than any one else outside his immediate family what he loved and what he hated, what he stood for and what he stood firmly against; among them they represent every phase of his extraordinary and many-sided career. If any group, therefore, can say what would be the wish of Theodore Roosevelt in regard to a national memorial to him, this committee should be able to do it.

The committee is absolutely open-minded with regard to the form which that memorial shall take. It expects to remain open-minded for many months to come. It not only promises to give all suggestions from sources outside the committee the most careful consideration, it solicits such suggestions.

Theodore Roosevelt believed in the people; that means that he believed in the sound horse sense of the average American. It is only just to his memory, therefore, that the American people whom he implicitly trusted and who trusted and followed him should have every opportunity to express their preference concerning the form that their memorial to him should take.

The committee has no idea what that form will be. It knows only this, that the memorial which the American people ultimately dedicate to Theodore Roosevelt must not be merely a thing of stone and bronze. Like Theodore Roosevelt himself, it must be dynamic. Roosevelt never stood still, and it would be treason to his spirit if this memorial should not have in it some of the creative energy of the man it seeks to honor. In some way it must help to build the new and better America.

Roosevelt the man is dead, but Roosevelt the energizing spirit is very much alive. It is the aim of the Memorial Committe, with the aid of Colonel Roosevelt's friends and supporters all over the country, to find some effective way of putting that spirit to work.

Contributions to the memorial fund should be made out to Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee, twenty-ninth floor, 1 Madison Avenue, New York City. They will be promptly acknowledged and deposited with the Treasurer, Albert H. Wiggin, at the Chase National Bank, and inscribed in a memorial volume for permanent record.

The committee wishes to emphasize that every penny given for a memorial will be spent for a memorial. Expenses of collection and administration will

PROF. PICKERING DIES GREAT ASTRONOMER

ESTABLISHED PERU STATION

In His Long Study of the Light and Spectra of Stars He Secured 1,400,000 Measurements.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 3.—Professor Edward Charles Pickering, Director of the Harvard Observatory and one of the most widely known astronomers in the country, died late today after a brief illness.

Professor Pickering was Professor of Practical Astronomy at Harvard and ranked in seniority all but one of the other active professors of the university.

Under Professor Pickering's direction the observatory greatly widened its scope, until it had built up a system of correspondence with observatories and private astronomers all over the world through which discoveries and observations were compared and verified. He established the observatory's auxiliary station at Arequipa, Peru, and devised new methods of astronomical photography.

For a long time he made a study of the light and spectra of stars. During this period the laboratory in conjunction with the Harvard Observatory has secured 1,400,000 measurements of the light of thousands of stars. In recognition of his researches in astronomics he received the Henry Draper Gold Medal in 1901. The work of extending the star catalogue of the Southern skies, begun at the Cape of Good Hope by the younger Herschel more than a century ago, was continued under Professor Pickering's direction and that of his brother, Professor William H. Pickering, at the Peru auxiliary station, since when 240,000 photographs have been obtained.

Professor Pickering was born at Boston, Mass., July 19, 1846, a son of Edward and Charlotte Hammond Pickering, and as a youth attended the old Boston Latin School. He got his science degree from the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard, from which he later received the honorary degree of Master of Arts. In 1874 he married Miss Lizzie Wadsworth Sparks, daughter of Jared Sparks. In addition to membership in many other kindred organizations, he was a member of the National Academy of Sciences, honorary member of the scientific societies in Mexico, Cherbourg, France, Liverpool, Toronto, Christiana, Upsala; a member of the Royal Geographical Society, the Royal Astronomical Society, the Astronomical Society of France, the Italian Spectroscopic Society, the Institute de France, and the Royal Society of London.

XAVIER LEROUX DEAD.

Composer of "Le Chemineau" and "La Reine Flammette" Dies in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Announcement is made here of the death of Xavier Leroux, the composer.

Probably the best known of Leroux's operas is "Le Chemineau," a work which was performed here last Friday night by the Chicago Opera Company, and "La Reine Flammette," which was produced at the Metropolitan Opera House for the second time last night, although "L'Ingenu," his latest operatic work, which is announced for its initial production at the Opera Comique in Paris this month, may find still greater favor here.

The composer was born of French parents at Vellerl, in what was then the Papal States, on Oct. 11, 1863. His full name was Xavier Henri Napoleon Leroux, and the boy early displayed a talent for music. He was admitted to the Paris Conservatoire, and won a first Prix de Rome in 1885. In 1890 his first opera, "Cleopatre," was performed. In addition to "Le Reine Flammette" and "Le Chemineau" other operas have been "Evangeline," "William Ratcliff," and "L'Epave." "Le Chemineau" was first performed at the Paris Opera Comique on Nov. 6, 1907. It was produced at New Orleans in 1911, in Chicago last month, and again last Friday night.

FRENCH ACT "L'AMI FRITZ."

Jacques Copeau's French company at the Theatre du Vieux Colombier appeared last night in Erckmann-Chatrian's pleasant little three-act comedy "L'Ami Fritz," familiar also to American playgoers by reason of its use by Mascagni as the basis for one of his popular operas and a recent English production by John Mason.

The play is quite thin and loosely put together, with many monologued asides in which, after the dramatic style of the time, the actors very frequently take the audiences into their confidence by thinking aloud. But it is extremely pleasant, nevertheless, and abounds in a light, humorous charm, providing an evening of excellent amusement.

M. Copeau appeared in the title rôle of Friend Fritz, the well-to-do bachelor, beloved of his bachelor friends, and in his bachelorhood so happy that he fails to realize that he is miserable until he falls in love. Romain Bouquet, as the genial and wily Rabbi Sichel, who rests not until he weaves a lovesnare round friend Fritz, and Renée Bouquet, the sweet and pretty daughter of Fritz's farmer, who does more than the rabbi to make this pious hope of the latter come to fruition, divided the honors of the evening with Director Copeau before a well-pleased audience.

Musical Velvet.

THE VELVET LADY, a musical comedy in three acts, based upon "A Full House." by Fred Jackson; adapted by Henry Blossom, music by Victor Herbert. At the New Amsterdam.

Parks	Ernest Torrence
Ottilie Howell	Marie Flynn
Susie	Georgia O'Ramey
Miss Winnacker	Eleanor Gordon
Bubbles	Minera Coverdale
Nicholas King	Jed Prouty
Ned Pembroke	Alfred Gerrard
George Howell	Ray Raymond
Sergeant	Daniel Sullivan
Mooney	Eddie Dowling
Vera Vernon	Fay Marbe
Mrs. Pembroke	Eda Von Buelow

Up to the last quarter of an hour of "The Velvet Lady," which opened last night at the New Amsterdam, the velvet was mainly supplied by Victor Herbert. The score, which ranges easily from patter song and spooky humoresque to sentimental ditty and languishing waltz, enveloped the none too novel book and lyrics with an atmosphere of gayety and charm which may well spell success. The waltz in particular seemed to delight the audience, striking the note of youthful love and longing with a persuasive, romantic melody in the very best mood of the Viennese composers. It is a tune which we are doubtless destined to hear for many months.

Then, during the final fifteen minutes, the Velvet Lady herself appeared, in the person of Fay Marbe, and with her a radiance of charm and a freshness of physical coloring which brought the whole to a climax. Owing to the exigencies of the plot, which is taken from Fred Jackson's farce, "A Full House," it was impossible to introduce Miss Marbe earlier; but in her single costume she combined the splendors of many changes, and in her few dances she irradiated a spirit which had been lacking except in the music. It was very far from a bad quarter of an hour.

For the rest, the production is notable mainly for uniform competence and a rather extraordinary good taste. Marie Flynn and Ray Raymond as the bride and bridegroom with Minerva Coverdale and Alfred Gerrard as the young lovers, sang and danced acceptably, the dancing of Miss Coverdale being rather exceptionally spirited and graceful.

Georgie O'Ramey's talent at grotesque comedy, which when blessed with proper material to work with, is as delightful as it is rare, was largely spent upon a very conventional slavey part. In a spooky sketch, however, she momentarily found herself as a sort of Robin Goodfellow, and she sang a humorous extravaganza, "What a Position for Me," in a way to delight the audience.

The three scenes and the many gowns attained the high level to which audiences at the New Amsterdam are accustomed. One of the Hallowe'en choruses proved a very delightful novelty—or is it only an inspired revival? The young ladies came on with little bowls and pipes and filled the stage with soap bubbles which floated in iridescent splendor for what seemed many minutes.

If an effect which is at once so simple and so gracefully fantastic has waited all these years for its Christopher Columbus, there is still hope for something new under the spotlight.

Mr. Herbert conducted, and was warmly received by his many friends in the audience.

LAWYER MUST PAY $48,207.

Court Finds Rinehart Acquired Woman's Money for His Use.

Findings by a referee that J. Brice Gordon Rinehart, lawyer, member of a prominent Pennsylvania family, Harvard graduate, and member at various times of the Union League, Harvard, and Republican Clubs, induced an aged woman client, who confided in him, to give him $42,000 in cash for investment in "enterprises that were safe and productive, and were a rare opportunity," whereas Rinehart "intended at all times to acquire the money for his own personal use, and for his personal interest and advancement," were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday by Malcolm Sumner, appointed to determine a suit brought against Rinehart by Miss Nancy Sanborn of Detroit for an accounting.

The referee finds that Rinehart at all times deceived his aged client by misrepresenting the value of stock in which he had invested her money, and by paying her fictitious dividends upon the pretense that they came from her stock, which not only failed to pay the 150 per cent. profit which Rinehart represented the company was earning, but failed to pay even an ordinary dividend. The dividends and other payments made to Miss Sanborn, as found by the referee, reduced Rinehart's debt to $36,216, for which he must account, with interest on various sums during the period from 1909 to 1916 aggregating $11,990, making the total sum of $48,207 which Rinehart is oredered to pay Miss Sanborn.

The principal investment made by Rinehart with Miss Sanborn's money was in stock of the W. T. Littig Company, a photo-engraving concern in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, in which Rinehart also induced Frederick Bauer, a florist, who was in business near Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn, for sixty years, to invest $9,000. Bauer went to the criminal courts with his complaint and had Rinehart arrested in May, 1916.

WOMEN NET STARS BEGIN TOURNAMENT

Miss Eleanor Sears and Miss Goss Are Easy Winners in First Day's Play.

MANY ARE ELIMINATED

Miss Molla Bjurstedt Wins by Default, but Will Be Ready to Enter Competition Today.

With an array of women tennis players, second only to a national championship, the annual women's invitation tournament started yesterday on the indoor courts of the Heights Casino in Brooklyn. The first round eliminated many players in the upper and lower halves of the draw and when the third round begins tomorrow the outstanding players in the upper half will be Miss Eleanor Sears, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, Mrs. De Forest Candee and Miss Claire Cassell. The prominent winners in the lower half are Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Marie Wagner, Mrs. Rawson Wood and Miss Helene Pollack.

The tournament last season was won by Miss Bjurstedt who defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, the tall Brooklyn girl in the finals. It would not be surprising if this same pair fought it out for the final honors this season also. It now looks as if the semi-final competition in the upper half of the draw would come down to a battle between the phenomenal Norse girl and Miss Sears, the talented Bostonian. In the lower half the semi-final may bring together Miss Wagner and Miss Goss.

The two Boston entries, Mrs. George Wrightman and Miss Marion Zinderstein, both defaulted their matches yesterday. Miss Molla Bjurstedt was on hand to play in spite of a hard cold contracted in Boston last week. Mrs. E. B. Shattuck, however, defaulted the match to the Norse girl. Miss Bjurstedt's illness affected her game in Boston last Saturday and it was feared that she would be unable to compete in the Casino tournament. Although she has not fully recovered from the cold, she is ready to play today, however.

Miss Sears had things pretty much her own way in her match with Mrs. Sohst. The first set was rather slow but in the second set the Boston girl brought into play a strong wrist movement and put so much speed on the ball that there was no question about her victory. There was a hard-fought match between Miss Cassel and Mrs. D. C. Mills. In the first set Mrs. Mills was within a point of winning on more than one occasion, but each time she missed that honor by an error on an easy smash, or because Miss Cassel thwarted her efforts on a shot down the side lines. This match was carried to three sets, Mrs. Mills rallying in the second set to win 6—3. Miss Cassel came back strong in the third set, however.

Mrs. Rawson Wood's experience gave her an advantage over Miss Barbara Hooker and she won at 6—4, 6—4. Miss Hooker at times forced Mrs. Wood at top speed but the cleverness of the more experienced player was too much for the young girl. Mrs. De Forest Candee played a splendid net game in her match with Mrs. Hartmann, and in the first set Mrs. Hartmann didn't get a point.

Miss Eleanor Goss's game was not extended in winning from Mrs. R. Earle. Mrs. Earle has been driving a Red Cross ambulance and and has not been in competition for more than two seasons. Because of lack of practice she did not display the cleverness with the racquet that she did a few seasons ago. Miss Goss was at the top of her game and drove a swifter ball than any of the contestants yesterday. Miss Helen Hooker fell before the superior playing of the more experienced player, Miss Wagner, while the third of the Hooker sisters, Miss Adelaide, was defeated by Mrs. Prichard.

The summaries:

First Round—Miss Claire Cassel defeated Mrs. D. C. Mills, 9—7, 3—6, 6—2; Mrs. Samuel Waring defeated Mrs. M. E. Huff, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Albert Humphries defeated Mrs. M. D. Strafin, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Helen Hooker, 6—0, 6—1.

Second Round.—Miss Eleanora Sears defeated Mrs. E. H. Sohst, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. De Forest Candee defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartmann, 6—0, 6—2; Mrs. B. Briggs won from Mrs. George Wrightman by default; Miss Adele Cragin defeated Miss Julie Brown, 6—4, 7—5, 6—4; Miss Molla Bjurstedt won from Mrs. E. B. Shattuck by default; Mrs. W. H. SMALLWOOD IN GERMANY.

Yankee Pitcher Does Not Expect to be Back for Season.

The Yankees may be deprived of the services of one of their most promising pitchers next summer for the simple reason that he will be busy with the Army of Occupation in Germany. Walter Smallwood, who used to pitch for Newark, and who joined the Yankees last season, is the pitcher and he sent word to Secretary Harry Sparrow yesterday that the artillery company to which he belongs is being held in readiness to relieve part of the army now occupying a strip of the Rhineland.

Smallwood had finished at an artillery school just before the armistice was signed. He thought that was the end of his military career, but he now finds that it was just the beginning, for if present plans materialize he will be impressing the German populace with the importance of America's fighting strength just about the time when he expected to be flinging over a fast one at Babe Ruth at the Polo Grounds. Walter admits that it's a long cry from Germany to Harlem, and he is afraid he will not be among those present when the umpire yells "Play ball!"

TEX RICKARD IN TOWN.

Hopes to Hold Championship Bout in New York.

Tex Rickard, who will promote the championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey on July 4, arrived in town last night from Texas and will confer today with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, relative to arranging the match. Rickard said he had received many offers from cities anxious to have the bout, but had not decided on a place yet.

The promoter expressed the hope that he might stage the bout in New York if a boxing bill was passed by the Legislature. "I would prefer New York for several reasons, if it is possible to hold the affair here," said Rickard. "I have received many offers but there has been no guarantee that the places willing to take the match will be able to carry out their plans. I expect to meet Kearns today and talk over the details with him. There is no reason why I should not come to terms with Dempsey since he is anxious to have a try at the championship.

Poly Prep Takes Up Lacrosse.

The Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute has taken up lacrosse and has entered the field against several other Brooklyn schools. John O'Rourke has been engaged as coach, and Albert Dopple has been elected Captain. Poly already has four players who have played the game at other schools, so Coach O'Rourke expects to have his team ready for competition within a short time.

LANGDON FALTERS WITH VICTORY NEAR

Three Misplays Cost Him Game with Neustadt in National Class C Billiard Tourney.

J. R. Langdon came very close to upsetting the accepted calculations in the Class C amateur 18.2 billiard tournament at Lawler's Academy in Brooklyn last night, when he surprised the large gallery by carrying Joseph Neustadt close to defeat. Langdon, playing better balkline than he had previously shown in the tournament, led the promising Brooklyn player up to the thirty-second inning, when he held the lead by a score of 134 to 127.

With the game within his grasp, Langdon's good form suddenly deserted him, and he made three misses in succession, which gave Neustadt a chance to rally, and well-gathered clusters of 3, 13, and 7 pulled him out of the hole and sent him into the lead. He finally pulled the game out of the fire in the thirty-fifth inning by a score of 150 to 143. Langdon's play most of the way was consistent, and had it not been for his erratic work in the last three innings he would have carried off the most sensational game of the whole tournament.

Charles Steinbugler and J. Blaisdell played one of the closest matches of the tourney. Blaisdell had only four points to make to go out in the last inning when he missed an easy chance after scoring two points. Steinbugler took advantage of this break in the game, and in the last inning he rolled up an unfinished run of 11 and won the match 150 to 146. It was a nip-and-tuck game all the way, with both players showing flashes of good form. Steinbugler had an average of 3 15-45, while Blaisdell's average was 3 14-44.

In the other game last evening Sidney Brussel defeated Gus Gardner by a score of 150 to 108.

Newtown High School's basket ball team quite easily defeated New Rochelle on the latter's court yesterday by a score of 22 to 14. Moss was most effective on offensive play for the winning team, scoring three field goals and as many more from foul. It was only the excellent work of Jones for New Rochelle that gave the losers their points.

The lineup:

Newtown. (22.)	Position.	New Roch'le. (14.)
Moss	R. F.	Sheldon
Fultone	L. F.	Tolley
Stewart	C.	Jones
McGrattan	R. G.	Steppel
Nelson	L. G.	Madden

Ollie O'Mara Signs Contract.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 3.—Ollie O'Mara, third baseman with the Brooklyn Baseball Club, who is visiting here, today signed for another year and mailed the contract to President Ebbets. O'Mara said the contract was the same as last year's. He will depart for Brooklyn next week, he said.

COLLEGE HOCKEY FEB. 8.

Harvard and Yale Meet on Ice in Brooklyn.

The first important competition to mark the resumption of college hockey will be the match between Harvard and Yale at the Brooklyn Ice Palace Saturday night, Feb. 8. Cold weather at Cambridge and New Haven has given the college sevens a chance to get in several practice games.

The Yale-Harvard hockey games before the war were among the most important college events of the indoor season. This match is the first of a series among the big three—Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

BOXING BILL UP IN SENATE TODAY

Senator Gibbs Will Introduce Measure Designed to Restore the Game in This State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Senator Leonard Gibbs of Buffalo will attempt to bring boxing back in this State tomorrow through the introduction of a bill calling for ten-round bouts with an official decision, and the supervision of the sport by a one-headed commission to be appointed by the Governor. Senator Gibbs intimated tonight that he might change his bill to provide for a supervising commission of three members.

The Gibbs bill has some chance of passage, according to legislative leaders tonight. Democrats will support it, and if the measure is passed, Governor Smith is expected to give his signature, which will make it a law.

The provision in the measure for a decision is regarded by followers of the game to be the wedge by which it can be successfully pushed through the Legislature.

Rendering a decission, according to Assemblyman Martin G. McCue of New York, is practically the only way that the boxing game can hope to find favor in the State. It is a provision, he believes, that will eliminate many of the objectionable features to boxing as conducted under the old Frawley law.

Howey Wins Handicap Race.

Joe Howey, with a handicap of ten yards, won the 300-yard handicap, which was the feature event of the members' games at the West Side Y. M. C. A., last night. E. H. Church was second and H. F. Davis third. The time was 0:36 4-5. In the other events, Church won the 20-yard dash; G. E. Wilson and H. Beck were tied for first place in the 600-yard novice run, and E. Roesch won the 1,000-yard handicap, with O. Dolder second and H. Beck third.

LYNCH DEFEATS NOBLE.

New Yorker Wins Decision Over English Bantam Champion.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight, of New York, beat Tommy Noble, the British bantamweight, on points in twenty fast rounds here today. Lynch does not win the championship as the fight was not held at the National Sporting Club and as the Lonsdale belt was not at stake.

The American bantam fought a losing battle during the first nine rounds when he seemed to lack all knowledge of distance and fell easy prey to Noble's straight left, which was his best offensive weapon. In the tenth round Lynch got over several good punches, including a left hook, and Noble apparently was in trouble at the end of the round. Lynch carried off the honors in every round after that. The referee repeatedly cautioned Noble for hanging on and holding. Lynch had much the best of the infighting in the last half of the fight, doing telling damage to Noble's mid-section.

When they weighed in before the fight Lynch was under 120 pounds, the stipulated weight. Noble refused to be weighed and lost the forfeit which he had posted.

DEMPSEY ISSUES DENIAL.

There Was No Agreement Before Harrison Bout, He Says.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 3.—Jack Dempsey, potential opponent of Jess Willard in a proposed contest for the world's heavyweight pugilistic championship, today returned to this city and issued a denial to charges alleged to have been made in San Francisco last Saturday by Fred Fulton, that a fight between Dempsey and Fulton at Harrison Park, N. J., July 27 last, had been prearranged, and that Dempsey had "double-crossed" Fulton.

"There was no such agreement," he said. "There was no chance for such an agreement. Fulton and I had an argument before we left the dressing room, and we nearly came to blows then."

All-Hallows Defeats Hamilton.

All-Hallows School basket ball five defeated the Hamilton Institute team at Hamilton's gymnasium yesterday by a score of 46 to 17. The Hallows players led from the start and were easily superior in passing and basket shooting.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market was devoid of influences to promote price movements yesterday, and consequently another indifferent session was added to the many which had gone before. At the end of the day there were more gains than declines, with the automobile stocks reflecting, as they have in other years, something of the attention drawn to the industry by the annual display of motor cars. In the bond department of the Stock Exchange a firm tone of Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Interborough Rapid Transit paper was noted, and some of the public utility stocks also gained ground. Consolidated Gas, People's Gas, and Twin Cities Rapid Transit shares advanced rather easily under light bidding. If the market as a whole had developed strength equivalent to these stocks and certain specialties to the accompaniment of equally moderate business, the story of the day would have been quite different, but as it was the progress of trading presented no indication of a broad increase of constructive interest.

The railroad group was lacking in response to the suggestions of the new Director General before the Senate committee for a continuation of Government control for five years. This was hardly surprising, inasmuch as Mr. Hines's arguments paralleled many of those which his predecessor in office held, and therefore were received as reiterations of former points. The Director General's views on the position of the railroads after five years of present control probably received more study in the financial district than anything else that he said before the committee. His contention that the carriers would be in more favorable condition for return to their owners after contemplated improvements and betterments had been completed by the Government is one over which the ideas of antagonists and protagonists of the plan divide sharply. Those who oppose a prolongation of the stipulated period of Federal management assert that the different properties might become so completely welded together that it would be exceedingly difficult to separate them into the original entities. Mr. Hines's statements in regard to the length of time necessary for forming a comprehensive program and his belief that serious difficulty would not follow a return to the old order without special legislation, tended to take the edge off some of the fears recently expressed in financial circles and emphasized the degrees of opinion which maintain in respect to railroad handicaps. The public as well as the Senate committee received additional material in the Director General's observations, which may be worked over at length in the task of drawing up a program which will meet the railroad needs.

The money market continued easy, the bulk of call loans being placed at 4 per cent., with some going at a lower figure. New financing announced during the day included $10,000,000 secured 6 per cent. notes of the Philadelphia Company which are to be offered on a basis to yield the buyer about 7.30 per cent.

FEDERAL BALANCE IS ALMOST NORMAL

Disbursements During January Were $3,613,020,900 and Receipts $3,858,005,721.

BEHIND FOR FISCAL YEAR

Spent More Than a Quarter of a Billion More Than Received for Seven Months Since July 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—During the month of January the grand total disbursements of the Treasury Department were $3,613,020,900.32. In the same period, according to figures available today, the Government's receipts were $3,858,005,721.06. The excess of total receipts over total disbursements during the month was $244,984,820.74.

Including the figures for January the grand total disbursements of the Government for the present fiscal year—from July 1, 1918, to Jan. 31, 1919—aggregated $22,474,574,215.02, while the grand total receipts during that period were $22,214,008,491.87. For the seven months period the disbursements exceeded the receipts by $259,986,723.15.

During the month of January the Government took in $43,141,373.49 from income and excess profits taxes and so far in the fiscal year of 1919 the Government has obtained $728,615,035.89 from income and excess profits taxes. This represented the largest section of its ordinary revenue. Miscellaneous internal revenue receipts during the seven months of the present fiscal year have aggregated $701,706,932.35. Customs brought in only $89,184,097.02, and the miscellaneous revenue amounting to more than a quarter of a billion dollars brought the total ordinary revenue—that derived from direct taxation—up to $1,804,322,815.62. The bulk of the receipts so far during the last seven months came from bonds sales and the funds borrowed on treasury certificates of indebtedness.

The receipts for the first seven months of the present fiscal year, shown in comparison with receipts during the corresponding seven months of the fiscal year 1918, follow:

HEAVY BUYING IN COTTON.

Solution of Labor Difficulties Drives Prices Up from 28 to 75 Points.

After having been more or less unsettled, and the price trend irregular during the closing days of last week, or since the announcement of the cut in ocean freight rates, which sent the market up to new high levels for this movement, the cotton market yesterday turned strong on the satisfactory turn of the labor trouble which had been an instrument in the depression of the market last week, and scored gains ranging from 110 to 135 points. The outlook in the textile centres underwent a change over Sunday by the acceptance by the operatives of the forty-eight-hour pay for that amount of labor. At some points this difficulty has not been entirely settled, but on the whole general conditions have been bettered.

The Liverpool cables, indicating a strong market there, played a part in the enthusiasm displayed around the ring; cotton futures in that market, after opening 4 to 10 points higher than Friday's closing, maintained a firm undertone through the day and closed with a net advance of 28 English points on February, and from 57 to 75 points on the later months.

First prices here were 32 to 45 points higher than Saturday's closing, and on the favorable development in the labor situation this gain gradually broadened on a buying movement, which caught the professional shorts entirely unprepared for the buying which came from all quarters.

SHELVE OIL CODE.

Trade Journal Says Mexican Congress Postponed Action.

The proposed new petroleum code which came up during the recent session of the Mexican Congress was not pressed for adoption and the Congress adjourned without having taken any action, according to The Oil Trade Journal. The publication says: "This code, which had been proposed by President Carranza and his advisers, contained provisions reaffirming the confiscatory features of Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution, and if made into law meant the possible loss to the oil companies of 80 per cent. of their properties, in the opinion of those well qualified to know.

"It was this proposed legislation that caused the oil companies to break off negotiations with the Mexican officials.

May Redeem French Bonds Here.

Reports were current yesterday that the French Government two-year 5½ per cent. notes, which mature on April 1, would be paid off with money already in this country, the amount necessary being invested in Treasury certificates of indebtedness. This, it was said, precluded the possibility of the formation of a banking syndicate either to advance a loan to the French Government or to underwrite the conversion of the notes into the twenty-year 5½ per cent. bonds. The total issue involved was $100,000,000, and of this amount is was said that only about $2,000,000 had thus far been converted.

Nova Scotia Bank Report.

The eighty-seventh annual report of the Bank of Nova Scotia shows that net profits for the year ended with last December were $1,411,925 or 21.72 per cent. on the paid up capital, which amounts to $8,580,000. Quarterly dividends of 14 per cent. were paid during the year. The surplus fund amounts to $12,000,000, the highest proportion of surplus to capital of any Canadian bank, and there is a total of $749,694 in undivided profits account.

Speedometer Profits Cut.

The Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation in its annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows net profits, after expenses, depreciation, and Federal taxes, of $1,594,605, a decrease of $266,109 from the preceding year. The earnings are equivalent to $15.94 a share on the $10,000,000 capital stock, as compared with $18.60 a share in 1917.

URGES A WORLD TAX TO MEET WAR DEBTS

Crespi Would Have Neutrals Help Allies to Pay What Enemies Cannot.

PLANS TO POOL INDEMNITIES

And to Distribute Shares Proportionately to Sacrifices — Provision for a Sinking Fund.

PARIS, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—A universal tax, the proceeds of which would be put into a common fund along with the indemnities Germany should be made to pay, is proposed by Signor Crespi of the Italian delegation to the Peace Conference, in the proposition he has made for the establishment of a "single financial front" for the Allies. The tax would furnish interest on that portion of the debts of the Allies which Germany had not paid and provide a sinking fund for ultimately canceling the debts.

After declaring that the Central Powers must compensate the Allies for the damage suffered during the war, Signor Crespi said:

"All the Allies have suffered immense losses, and they must all benefit from the indemnities which the enemy is to pay. Each one should receive in proportion to the effort it has made. Thus, smaller States that have spent more than larger ones in comparison to their wealth ought to receive larger indemnities in proportion. Absolute fairness ought to be preserved in the division of indemnities.

"The simplest way to carry out the actual distribution would be to put the entire fund into a common pool which could be periodically apportioned among the different nations. The fund should be augmented by taxes of a universal character levied on all States, enemy, allied, or neutral, the last named having benefited from the sacrifices made by the Allies. Such taxes might be levied on exports and imports, and also on coal and raw materials. It seems to me only fair that countries which have benefited, and even grown rich, through the suffering and sacrifice of the Allies should be made to help compensate the Allies.

"The enemy should be forced to pay as large a sum as possible of the Allies' debts. The international tax would furnish interest on the rest, and a sinking fund for paying it off eventually. In my opinion the enemy ought to be allowed to pay, not only in gold, but in raw materials and finished products. Part of their debt might be covered by bonds, which they would take up gradually in exchange for goods delivered to the Allies.

"The supply of raw materials is another important question to be considered. If they are furnished to enemy countries at the same time and at the same prices as to the Allies, the Austrians, and Germans, whose industrial plants have not been destroyed and who are ready to return to a peace basis in their production more rapidly than the Allies, would reach foreign markets more quickly and under better conditions than would be possible for the Allies. This we must avoid at all costs. I therefore propose that distribution of raw materials be internationally controlled in such a way that allied countries may be served before enemy countries.

"Another important question involved is that of the length of the working day. A day's labor in Germany before the war was very long. If it continues so now they will be able to produce more cheaply than we can. Therefore, international laws on this question have become essential."

Anaconda Copper Output Drops.

A sharp falling off in production is shown in the January report of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, the amount of the red metal mined being only 15,000,000 pounds as compared with 21,900,000 pounds in December of last year. Last month's production was the lowest since September, 1917, and represents a falling off of 17,400,600 pounds from the output of 33,300,000 pounds in April, 1916, the record month in the company's history. In May of last year the production of the company was 28,400,000 pounds, this being the highest of any month of 1918. Production now is on the basis of about 45 per cent. of capacity.

CABLE SUITS ADVANCED.

Supreme Court Advances Hearing on Control Litigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The United States Supreme Court today advanced to March 3 the hearing of arguments in the suits the Mackay Company has brought in an endeavor to force Postmaster General Burleson to relinquish that company's cables and return them to private ownership. There are two suits upon the calendar, one brought by the Commercial Cable Company, and the other by the Commercial Pacific Cable Company, both companies being subsidiaries of the Mackay Company, which is the holding organization for thirty-nine companies. Each action was brought against Postmaster General Burleson and Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union, now assisting Mr. Burleson in the Federal control of the cables.

The advancing of the suits was upon application to the court by agreement of the cable companies and the Post Office authorities. Neither the cable company nor the Government made appearance in court through attorneys, and a formal written order was handed down by the court announcing the date, which will be the first day the Supreme Court will sit again. Ordinarily without being advanced, the suits probably could not have been reached on the court calendar in less than eighteen months.

The offering of Philadelphia Company three-year 6 per cent. notes will probably be made today or tomorrow at 96½ to yield more than 7.30 per cent.

The most voluminous report ever submitted to the Stock List Committee of the New York Stock Exchange was entered by the General Motors Corporation in its application to list $50,740,800 6 per cent. cumulative debenture stock and $68,742,300 common stock. The report which covers twenty-seven pages was made public yesterday when the Stock Exchange Committee, at a special meeting, acted favorably on the application. At the same time the committee recommended the listing of $1,500,000 first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. twenty-five-year bonds of the Northern States Power Company.

Bergen—

THIS well fortified seaport of Norway has an unusually mild temperature for so northern a latitude. Also a heavy rainfall, averaging 72 inches. It presents a most picturesque appearance from the sea. Its principal industries are shipbuilding, barrel making and fishing. In March and April several hundred vessels loaded with fish and other commodities may be seen in the harbor at one time. As a Norwegian port, Bergen is next to Christiania in commercial importance. Up to the end of 1917 Norway had lost by submarines and in other ways 714 ships, aggregating 1,100,000 tons. This is a great loss for such a small maritime country. Bergen's total imports in 1912 were valued at £4,700,000, against £5,000,000 in 1913. This was about 15% of Norway's total imports. Its exports are about two-thirds its imports—wooden goods and fish goods constituting over one-half. There is keen demand in Norway for fine imported shoes, the demand for the coarser grades being supplied at home.

A PERFORMANCE AND A PROMISE

Cities Service Co.

Common Stock

Earned during the past year $61.67 on the outstanding issue. The present price of $310-$313 seems absurdly low. In the last eight years Cities Service Company, as an operator of Public Utility properties and one of the country's largest producers of Crude Oil, has advanced earnings on its common stock from $8 a share in 1905 to the present large return. And it is only beginning to grow. This group of properties, distributed through twenty-three States and operating also in Canada and Mexico, stands upon the threshold of still greater successes.

The common stock should be bought now for ultimate large profits. Will pay 12% stock dividend and 6% cash dividend in 1919—more next year.

FUR AUCTION HERE BRINGS HIGH PRICES

Advance of More Than 20 Per Cent. in Most Pelts on Opening Day at Sale.

DEMAND CAUSES SURPRISE

Buyers from Three Continents Bid for $6,000,000 Worth of Raw Skins.

The prices for furs prevailing yesterday at the opening of a six-day auction of $6,000,000 worth of pelts by the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation at the Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, were said to indicate that furs would remain in the premier list of class during the country's readjustment period.

Yesterday's offerings included 227 Wolverine, 641 Fisher, 368 Russian sable, 7,937 beaver, and 547 silver fox skins, for which the receipts were approximately $750,000. It was found impossible, due to lack of time, to dispose of all of the silver fox skins, and the balance left from yesterday will be the first offerings to go under the hammer today.

The upward movement of prices at yesterday's sale came as a surprise to even the most optimistic of the shippers, particularly in view of the large offerings disposed of last week, when the total sales at the auction in St. Louis ran close to $10,000,000. Prices obtained yesterday were said by officials of the fur sales corporation to have exceeded those at St. Louis for similar goods, while in practically all instances surpassing price levels established at the sale held in New York last October. The prices were held to be all the more remarkable, because, with the war ended, normal importations of fur skins may be expected soon.

Advances recorded yesterday over prices obtained in October were officially stated to be as follows:

Wolverine, 20 per cent.; Fisher, 25 per cent.; Russian sable, 25 per cent.; beaver, 15 per cent.; silver fox (fresh, clear skins,) 20 per cent., and silver fox (stale and low-grade skins,) unchanged.

The range of prices for the day were: Wolverine, $4.50 to $17.75 per skin; Fisher, $25, to $100; Russian sable, $45 to $275; beaver, $4.50 (cubs) to $27.25 for the large skins, and silver fox, $75 to $640.

Among the buyers yesterday of silver fox skins were C. G. Gunther, H. Jaeckel & Sons, J. Clugman, New York; Mandel Bros., Chicago, and Goetze Frères, Paris. Buyers were present from all sections of the United States, Europe, South America, and other distant points, most of trade factors making purchases. Some of those who had come for "bargains" left after the morning session, convinced that low prices would not develop at this stage of the auction.

Experts who viewed the merchandise in the warehouse prior to the sale asserted yesterday that the silver fox collection was unusually good, with fewer stale skins than ordinarily found at sales, while the beaver collection was described as especially rich in Alaska and Northwest skins. Russian sable offerings were described as "good," with some Mongolian and Chinese skins, a large proportion of the collection being Siberian and Russian skins. Russian skins, it was stated, were just beginning to make their appearance in the American market after having been practically excluded during the four years of war.

In addition to the American buyers present yesterday, a large contingent of Canadians were on hand, together with Victorson, London; Manuel Gonsales, Mexico City, and Felix Gluckman, Paris. W. W. Felter made the trip from Fort Yukon, Alaska, to attend the auction here. Among those from St. Louis attending the sale were Marcus Harris and G. L. Harris. Chicago had a strong delegation present.

Following a conference held last night at the McAlpin between a committee of employers and workers, it was stated that the threatened strike in the New York fur industry probably would not take place. According to available information, the manufacturers agreed to meet the workers' demand for a 44-hour week and a wage-increase. The representatives of the unions conceded the right of manufacturers to hire and dismiss employes without review by the union. Full pay for legal holidays was also agreed upon.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was a firm tone to values at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices, particularly in the steel and kindred stocks, showed substantial gains. The general market tone was improved as the result of a fairly active demand in the final hour. Earlier losses were recovered in the rally.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

That the real estate market is in the boom both from an investment and speculation standpoint was very evident from the unusual number of large deals closed yesterday.

It was one of the busiest days the market has experienced in many months, and among the more important transactions was the sale of a $2,000,000 block front of apartments on the heights, the purchase of the Victoria Hotel property at 155 West Forty-seventh Street, by the Salvation Army, and a $700,000 sale in the Times Square section. The Bronx, Brooklyn, and suburban markets were equally active.

Riviera Apartments, Held at $2,000,000, Sold to Dase Realty Company.

One of the largest recent deals in the Washington Heights section was closed yesterday when the Riviera Apartments, occupying the block front in Riverside Drive from 156th to 157th Street, was sold to the Dase Realty Company for about $2,000,000.

The property consists of a thirteen-story modern fireproof apartment house containing 150 apartments, and showing a gross annual rental of about $200,000. It was built by the sellers, the Riviera Land Company, several years ago on land purchased from the Sound Realty Company. Slawson & Hobbs sold the property through Sonn Brothers.

$700,000 Seventh Avenue Corner Bought for Large Building.

By far the largest Seventh Avenue deal, just below the Times Square section, that has been made in many months has been closed in the purchase of a large plot at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street by Herman D. Goodstein, representing a large corporation, which will erect a big building for its occupancy on the site. The property consists of nine old houses at 528 to 536 Seventh Avenue and 200 to 212 feet on the Thirty-ninth Street, fronting 107 feet on the avenue and 146 feet on the street. It was sold for various owners through Alfred C. Marks. The holding price for the parcels represented about $700,000. With the completion of the proposed building, the investment will aggregate nearly $2,500,000.

The property is opposite the rear of the Metropolitan Opera House and St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, the latter on the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street. On the street the plot is protected by a twenty-foot house bought to protect the light of the adjoining twelve-story Pictorial Review Building.

John Jacob Astor of London Files Plans for $1,500,000 Wall Street Building.

Plans were filed yesterday for the erection of a thirty-one-story office building at 1 to 12 Wall Street, the estimated cost being given at $1,500,000. The property, which is owned by John J. Astor of London, has a frontage of 66 feet on the north side of Wall Street, running back to a depth of 98 feet. The architect is Charles E. Birge. The building when completed will be 440 feet high.

Joseph F. Cullman Adds to His Downtown Holdings.

The Townsend estate sold to Joseph F. Cullman 72 and 74 Beaver Street, corner of Hanover Street, one of the most desirable sites in the new marine district. The plot contains 2,500 square feet, with frontages of 63 feet on Beaver Street and 39 feet on Hanover.

With the exception of a property on Pearl Street owned by Charles E. Rushmore, the balance of the block is owned and improved by the buildings of the New York Cotton Exchange and the New York Coffee Exchange.

In close proximity to this building is the Seligman Building, recently purchased by Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, the former occupants, the Edmonico Building purchased by insurance interests and renamed the Marine Building, and the homes of Chubb & Co., the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, the National City Bank, and Brown Brothers.

Mr. Cullman paid all cash for the property, and appointed the Charles F. Noyes Company to negotiate the sale, as agent, with instructions to cancel all leases on May 1 next, at which time the property will be improved with a new structure to be used exclusively for marine insurance underwriting. The property was valued at about $175,000.

Arcade Building to Replace Old Racquet Club—$2,500,000 Loan Secured.

James T. Lee, who has been identified with numerous big building operations in this city, has purchased through Manning & Trunk, as agents, the old Racquet and Tennis Club building at 19 to 31 West Forty-third Street, and 26 to 28 West Forty-fourth Street.

When the club moved into its home on Park Avenue the property was taken over by a committee formed from the members, who relieved the club of the expense of carrying the unused building-tion have been taking the old club property recently. The structure on the plot has a frontage of 141.10 feet on Forty-third Street and 100.5 feet on Forty-fourth Street. Plans for a structure of the Arcade type have been prepared by Starrett & Van Vleck. A building loan of $2,500,000 has also been secured by the same brokers.

$400,000 Riverside Drive Deal.

Upper Riverside Drive furnished an important deal in the purchase by Frederick Brown of the six-story apartment house known as the Switzerland on the northeast corner of 151st Street. It fronts 103.9 feet on the Drive, 145 feet on 151st Street with a northerly depth of 173 feet. The property was bought from the Middletown Savings Bank and was held at $400,000. It returns an annual rental of about $43,000.

The house is arranged for two families on a floor, with eight-room suites, and returns an annual rental of $11,000. Last week the Messrs. Mandelbaum acquired the seven-story elevator apartment at 305 and 307 West 118th Street from the Seamen's Bank for Savings.

Frederick Brown, operator, resold to a client of William H. Mehlich in a cash deal the four-story apartment house at 2,597 Grand Concourse, on plot 50 by 79. The house rents for about $5,000, and was held at $40,000. It was acquired by Mr. Brown a few days ago.

The five-story apartment house at 254 East 184th Street, corner of Ryer Avenue, on plot 60 by 100, has been purchased by Vogel & Schultz from Max Wettstein. The property was held at $80,000. H. F. Byrnes was the broker in the sale.

TEXTILE WORKERS OUT AT LAWRENCE

Demand 54 Hours' Pay for 48 Hours' Labor — Day Reduced Elsewhere.

SOME MILLS CLOSE DOWN

Lack of Orders and Raw Materials Given as Reason in Case of Up-State Factories.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 3.—The first day of the strike in the textile mills of this city passed off quietly. Pickets posted about all the plants confined themselves to shouting "Fifty-four hours' pay for forty-eight hours' work!" and handing to workers cards bearing the figures "54—48."

Members of the General Committee of textile workers estimated that 75 per cent. of the 30,000 operatives went on strike. Mill agents placed the number of strikers at different plants at various percentages, ranging from 10 to 40.

The four mills of the American Woolen Company were practically closed in the afternoon. Other mills remained open throughout the day, and most of them carried on a reduced amount of work.

Late in the day the agent of the Everett Mills, employing 4,000 operatives, announced that the mills would be shut down tomorrow for an indefinite time. All the other mill agents said that their plants would open at the usual time tomorrow.

No attempts at conferences between representatives of the strikers and the manufacturers were made today. The strike leaders reiterated their determination to accept nothing less than a forty-eight-hour week with fifty-four hours' pay. Some of the manufacturers expressed the opinion that after a day or two the workers would gradually filter back into the mills.

Strike Not Sanctioned.

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Operatives in textile mills in many sections of New England were working today on a basis of forty-eight hours a week, a reduction of six hours from the schedule which had long been in effect. In most cases the reduction in working hours had been agreed to by the manufacturers with the stipulation that the operatives should receive forty-eight hours' pay and time and a half for overtime work.

Frank H. Carpenter, general agent of the American Woolen Company, in a statement issued today regarding the situation at Lawrence, said:

"The situation is being handled to the entire satisfaction of the company by the Lawrence agents and their reports to us are most encouraging. Of course we regret the fact that Lawrence should again be picked for an industrial strike demonstration, particularly as the American Woolen Company's agents in that city were the first to answer the demands of the workers and grant fully their original demands.

Jamestown Mills Shut Down.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Two thousand men and women employed in Jamestown textile industries are out of work. The large mill of William Broadhead & Sons and the Jamestown Worsted Mills, owned by the Broadhead interests, shut down at noon today, following similar action on Saturday by the Empire and Acme Worsted Mills. The manufacturers state that they have closed indefinitely because of lack of orders and trouble in obtaining raw materials.

ALBANY, Feb. 3.—Between 4,000 and 5,000 employes of twenty-three textile plants at Albany, Cohoes, and vicinity villages were idle today. When they reported for work they were greeted with printed notices informing them the plants were closed because of "lack of orders and insufficient work." The employes' representatives said the closing of the plants was in reality a lockout, as, they declared, never before in the history of the mills had so many found it necessary to close simultaneously.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 3.—Notices were posted today in the shoe factory of the W. H. McElwain Manufacturing Company in this city, announcing that beginning Feb. 10 the plant would be operated forty-eight hours a week instead of fifty as at present. There will be no reduction in pay for the 6,000 operatives.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 3.—Every union man in Seattle will walk out on a general strike at 10 A. M. next Thursday, according to an announcement issued today by a publicity committee named at a meeting yesterday of representatives of 110 unions.

FUR STRIKE AVERTED.

Paterson Silk Manufacturers Submit to War Labor Board.

The threatened strike of more than 6,000 New York fur workers was averted last night at a conference between representatives of the Associated Fur Manufacturers and Morris Kaufman of the Fur Workers' Union. The settlement, however, does not affect fur workers in independent shops and those of the Manufacturers' Mutual Protective Association, who are expected to strike at 10 o'clock today.

The settlement provides for the 44-hour week, elimination of the slack season price, a minimum scale throughout the year and an increase of 40 per cent. on the minimum scale. The manufacturers are prohibited from giving finishing work to contractors without sanitary certificates, and the workers shall receive pay for all legal holidays.

Officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union yesterday declared that more than 10,000 strikers against the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association were on the picket lines yesterday. Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the union, said an agreement had been made with the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association under which about 8,000 workers would return to work provided the general assembly of manufacturers ratified the agreement today.

In Paterson last night, it was declared, that the strike of 27,000 silk workers there would be settled probably within a week. The manufacturers met yesterday and announced that a committee had been appointed to submit the entire question to the War Labor Board. Louis Magnat, Chairman of the Workers' Eight-Hour Day Committee, said this move promised an early settlement. The 27,000 workers on strike represent more than 90 per cent. of those employed in the industry. About 2,000 workers employed in smaller mills have won the forty-seven hour week and were at work yesterday.

BOYCE MOTO METER

"THAT BOYCE MOTO-METER stands out like a block signal—giving a warning that can't be missed.

"It tells me what's going on under the hood.

"It substitutes certainty for guess work.

"It warns me when my motor is running too cold—wasting gas and running up operating costs.

"It warns me of overheating—with its even more costly results.

"And what's more, that BOYCE MOTO-METER gives its warning in plenty of time—before any serious trouble can occur.

"There are 125 different makers of passenger cars, trucks and tractors today that consider their motors so good that they are keeping them good by equipping them with BOYCE MOTO-METERS at the factory.

"Over a million BOYCE MOTO-METERS are in service.

"Don't drive your car without one—go to the dealer or garage you trade with. He carries the BOYCE MOTO-METER in stock or can quickly obtain one for you and attach it to your radiator cap in ten minutes."

During the New York Automobile Show the Boyce Moto-Meter will be exhibited and demonstrated at Booth 302 A, balcony, Madison Square Garden
